Loan In Victoria Tops $8,530,000

Premier John Hart receives commando dagger.

Mayor A. McGavin gives Miss Canadas commando dagger.

At 10 a.m. today Victoria had passed its Victory Loan objective of $8,530,000.

Immediately R. W. Hiberson, Victoria chairman, dispatched two of his pretty Miss Canadas to the City Hall to advise Mayor McGavin of Victoria's magnificent response to the plea "Nothing Matters Now But Victory." They carried with them the commando dagger. Mayor McGavin returned the dagger to the Miss Canadas and sent them with it to Premier John Hart at the Parliament Buildings. On their way Miss Canadas crossed the face of the corner of Yates and Douglas Streets.

"I am indeed gratified to learn that the Victoria unit has gone over the top with respect to its own quota in the Third Victory Loan campaign," Premier Hart declared.

Mr. Hart instructed the young ladies to proceed to the Causeway and unfurl the quota flag. In doing so he gave a message to all citizens who had not yet subscribed, to add their weight to the thousands who already had participated in the third loan.

"With all of us participating, the burden of war will be more equitably distributed," he said. "With all of us adding our weight to the job, we can push this loan to greater heights. I am mindful of the fact that Canada has set its minimum goal at $750,000,000, but we should not stop there. We should subscribe every dollar that we can afford, so that the financing of the war will be made that much easier for those who bear the tremendous responsibility of equipping our army, navy and air force for the offensive that looms so closely ahead. I would, therefore, urge upon all citizens, whether they have subscribed or not, to ask themselves this question, 'Have I done my utmost?'"

Mr. Hart paid tribute to the scores of voluntary workers who have, over the past two weeks, given so much of their time to the campaign. He exhorted them to carry on to the end and achieve $10,000,000.

Medical Officers In Quebec Held; Facing Charges

QUEBEC (CP)—Brig. Georges P. Vanier, officer commanding Military District No. 5 here, announced today that certain medical officers and other ranks have been placed in military custody following investigation of "certain irregularities" relating to the carrying out of medical examinations by army boards.

"The information which the investigation has so far brought to light," Brig. Vanier said in a statement issued at a press conference, "is such as to require that appropriate military charges be laid against certain medical officers and other ranks of the army, whose duties related to such medical examining boards."

NO DETAILS OVERLOOKED

"Accordingly, these officers and other ranks have been placed in military custody and immediate action is being taken to deal with the charges in question. This investigation is proceeding and will be carried out with the utmost vigor and dispatch possible."

"As soon as this matter came to light, through a report from the district medical officer, an investigation was undertaken immediately by the army and the R.C.M.P." the statement added.

R.C.M.P. officials here had no comment to make on the matter. Brig. R. J. Orde, army judge advocate-general, who has been conferring with Brig. Vanier, also attended the press conference.

Nazis Advancing At Nalchik Only; Lose at Stalingrad

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW (AP)—A force of 50,000 German and Rumanian mountain infantry, armored troops and sailors edged forward today in a narrow sector south-east of Nalchik, but the enemy was reported on the defensive in other parts of that flaming Caucasus battlefield.

The main Nazi thrust, which has forced a Red Army withdrawal from Nalchik itself, apparently was aimed at Ordzhonikidze, some 60 miles away on the military road leading to the Georgian pass through the Caucasus Mountains.

The army newspaper Red Star said the Germans, weakened by enormous losses at Stalingrad, were unable to mount a general offensive in the Caucasus, and were throwing their full available strength into the comparatively local advance below Nalchik.

TAKE TIME OUT

Instead of carrying on their previously favored non-stop offensive tactics, the newspaper said, the Germans now are taking a breathing spell after each assault in order to bring up reinforcements.

The Caucasus front amounts to only one-fifth of the whole Russian front, Red Star pointed out, adding that "even there the Germans have been powerless recently to retain the initiative in all sectors, with the result that while attacking on some positions, the Germans have been forced to take the defensive on others."

Dispatches from the Caucasus said the Germans had transferred additional troops to the Caucasus for the Nalchik push. The attacking force there was said now to number two tank divisions, two Rumanian Alpine divisions and 1,500 land-fighting Nazi soldiers.

RUSSIANS WITHDRAW

The Russians announced Monday night they had withdrawn from Nalchik.

The gloomy picture of developments in the southernmost of the combat theatres was relieved, however, by announcement of fresh Soviet gains in the 10-week-old battle of Stalingrad.

Despite reinforcements of the invaders, the enemy was thrown out of several buildings in a factory district by counterattacking Russians, the noon communique said.

"Our troops repulsed enemy attacks and consolidated positions which they occupied," it was announced.

Gunboats—One sunk.

Unclassified warships—Eight hit.

Unidentified types—Seven believed sunk or damaged.

Beurling Little Injured; Convoy to Visit Canada

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND

(CP)—The report that Canada's aerial ace, Pilot Officer George Beurling of Verdun, Que., had suffered a leg fracture in an air accident at Gibraltar turned out today to be much exaggerated.

Development of X-ray pictures taken after the 20-year-old Spitfire pilot and hero of the defence of Malta had arrived at the R.A.F. hospital here showed no bodily injury. All that he got from a crash of a big airplane at Gibraltar was a cut on the hand and a bad shaking up.

The young fellow who would sooner match his wits and skill with a Nazi airman than anything else except to see his folks at home, fretted because his trip to Canada to take part in the Victory Loan campaign had been interrupted. But except for his disappointment he was a cheery customer and the object of all eyes at the hospital.

PLANE AMBULANCE

Beurling was brought to the United Kingdom by air ambulance, following the Gibraltar accident in which several persons were killed, and taken immediately to the hospital for X-ray examination.

Spearhead Pushed 16 Miles Forward; Navy Joins Fight

By FRANK L. MARTIN

WITH THE BRITISH 8TH ARMY ON THE EL ALAMEIN FRONT (AP)—Using several of his most powerful armored units and infantry troops Monday night in an all-night attack, Lt. Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery's forces made a clean breakthrough in the enemy's defences.

The new breach was made in the neighborhood of the previous gap cut through the northern end of the El Alamein line by infantry and artillery.

Then at the first light of day the Allied tanks moved north to engage the 21st German armored division, which was approaching from the north.

At the same time British armored cars poured through the gap and turned south, where they began chopping up enemy infantry detachments and in fact anything of the enemy's that came in sight.

The 8th Army's armored attack began as darkness fell Monday over a 4,000-yard front and by morning it had slashed through to a point where there were no fixed enemy defences ahead.

Biggest Tank Clash Of 12-Day Attack

By EDWARD KENNEDY

CAIRO (AP)—British tanks in force have clashed with Field Marshal Rommel's vaunted Africa Corps in the biggest tank battle of the 12-day-old Allied drive in Egypt with fighting swirling around Tebel-Akakh—the Hill of Wicked Men—where the British infantry assault has knifed 16 miles deep into the Axis defence zone.

(Reuters news agency reported that a Berlin broadcast attributed to DNB, the German news agency, said the British command had thrown some 500 tanks into "the greatest tank battle of the whole African campaign.")

Nazi Surrender After Bombardment

The British 8th Army announced that many of the enemy had surrendered in one sector after a fierce bombardment of Axis positions by Allied planes.

The scene is one of the highest points along the centre of the present tight-hemmed battlezone between the Mediterranean and the Qattara salt marshes.

It is 16 miles beyond the long-stabilized defence line through the ridge southwest of El Alamein, and represents a gain of several miles by British infantry which slashed forward under their own artillery barrage during the hours just before the tank clash developed Monday at dawn.

The infantry won a position which partly pocketed a considerable Axis force.

That was when Rommel sent his long-reserved armor into action—and that was the moment for which the British command had prepared. Their own tanks stormed into the fight, and the first big scale test of armored might was underway.

The Australians, who spearheaded the initial British thrust along the coastal rail line where Axis forward forces were hemmed in against the sea, bore the brunt of Rommel's desperate tank assault for the relief of his trapped troops.

The British tank onslaught, in turn, eased the pressure on the Australians and permitted the Allied land forces to continue their mop-up.

Allied Planes Over All Sectors

Battlefront dispatches said numerous German tanks were knocked out in the clash of steel, while elsewhere the battlezone was strewn in places with the bodies of Germans who tried in vain to escape the trap.

The clash of the tank forces was accompanied by a terrific and high; effective assault by Allied air striking forces which lasted throughout Monday and Monday night.

Still in command of the air, the Allied fliers ranged up and down the lines, bombing and strafing Axis positions and ranged far behind the battlefront to enemy-held Tobruk and other German and Italian communications.

American heavy bombers made the attack on Tobruk, where direct bomb hits started huge orange and yellow fires which headquarters reported sent smoke clouds rolling 3,000 feet above the harbor.

One Axis fighter was shot down and a second probably destroyed.

Eight naval units of the British Mediterranean fleet also struck out during the past week in operations against the enemy's shore position to the rear of his lines. A navy communique issued at Alexandria said fire was exchanged with the shore defences by the naval craft and that all returned to their bases without damage or casualties despite air attacks.

(London dispatches said "with the shift of the main weight of the Allied attack southward there is a feeling in London that anything might happen now that armored units apparently have pushed through Rommel's static defences and perhaps are loose on the other side.")

(Axis communiques, particularly Italian, stressed even more than did the British the violence of the combat between the sea and the Qattara Depression about 80 miles west of Alexandria.

(The Italian communique said an "imposing" Allied armored force struck "with even greater violence. Enemy losses are heavy, especially in armored cars of which more than 90 have been destroyed.")

Then it added significantly: "Our losses, too, are high."

(German broadcasts said the British centre thrust was "the biggest attack so far," but asserted this "break-through" attempt was frustrated. The Germans said, however, they had the impression the British command was attempting to force an immediate decision.)

BRITISH TANKS SWARM FORWARD—Some 500 machines are battling Rommel's army on one sector 16 miles ahead of the position indicated by the line west of the flag in the map above. This spearhead was thrust into the Axis defences after Australians had pocketed a large enemy force in the El Alamein line. A naval force, meanwhile, blasted at the enemy's rear as overwhelming forces of Allied planes kept up constant pounding of Axis bases and supply lines still farther west.

Drew Pearson Sues 'Ham' Fish

NEWBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — Drew Pearson, syndicated Washington columnist, filed a $250,000 libel suit Monday against Representative Hamilton Fish, Republican, New York State.

William A. Walsh of Rhinebeck, attorney for Pearson, said a summons had been served on Fish at his campaign headquarters in Newburgh.

The basis of the suit was reported to be a statement in a Poughkeepsie newspaper in which Fish was quoted as calling Pearson a "contemptible liar" as a rejoinder to material in the Pearson column attacking the veteran Republican representative.

Rep. Fish is seeking re-election to the House today in President Roosevelt's home district.

In reply to Pearson's suit, Fish said he planned to file a $500,000 libel suit against Pearson.

Fish has 20 days to answer Pearson's summons.

Still Fights Nazis

MOSCOW (AP) — The fortress of Kronstadt, on an island off Leningrad, was disclosed today to be still engaging Nazi artillery more than a year after the enemy first approached the bastion on three sides.

The roar of cannon has become a common part of life on the fortress island, a dispatch to the newspaper Pravda said. Many houses have been destroyed. The sailor garrison and their families have adapted themselves to the siege. It said the island was covered with vegetable gardens and carved up with lines of trenches.

Both sides of the Gulf of Finland facing Kronstadt have been taken by the Germans and they have also approached from the sea, Pravda said.

2 More Jap Cruisers Sunk, Ghormley Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sinking of two additional Japanese cruisers and a destroyer in the South Pacific was reported today by Navy Secretary Knox, who coupled with the news an admonition against "growing too optimistic" about the Solomons campaign.

"It is still a bitter, tough fight," he told his press conference. "They (the Japanese) have a fleet of formidable proportions left. We haven't any doubt they'll come back."

Knox's report of sinking two more enemy cruisers was based on late information from Vice-Admiral Robert L. Ghormley, now back from his former command as chief of naval operations in the South Pacific.

Ghormley's account of the battle off Savo island the night of Oct. 11-12, Knox said, listed five enemy destroyers and three cruisers as sunk.

That engagement was described at Pearl Harbor Monday night by Capt. Ernest G. Small as "A hell of a meleé" which completely surprised the enemy. See Page 14.

MINIMIZE TRIUMPH

The navy communique on that engagement had reported only one enemy cruiser sunk, plus four destroyers and a transport. Ghormley's report thus added two cruisers and one destroyer to the toll taken of the enemy.

Knox said the additional damage reported by Ghormley was an example of "the ultra conservatism" of the navy in reporting damage to the enemy.

In speaking out against too much optimism springing from the severe damage inflicted on the Japanese fleet in the Solomons, Knox said:

"I don't want to build up optimism that will be punctured later by a desperate hard fight which lies ahead."

Knox also declared he was "particularly proud" of the navy's submarine service, saying the submarine service generally had "done a particularly amazing and outstanding job."

"This is primarily a war of attrition," he continued, "and there is no arm of the service more important in a war of attrition than the submarines."

TO TAKE REST

Asked about the new assignment to be given Admiral Ghormley, who has been succeeded by Vice-Admiral William F. Halsey, Knox said he had told Ghormley that he should get a good rest because he had "been under terrific strain out there."

An American drive to squeeze the Japanese out of Guadalcanal appeared under way as marines, supported by a tempestuous aerial assault, pressed the enemy farther away from the island's hotly contested airfield.

Thus within a week, the fortunes of war had changed the threat of a gathering Japanese naval and land offensive in the southwestern Pacific to strengthen American domination over the Solomon Islands prize.

Republican Gains Expected As U.S. Casts Light Vote

By J. F. SANDERSON

WASHINGTON (CP) — Millions of United States citizens took time off today from their war duties and exercised the democratic right of ballot-marking.

In the first wartime election since 1918, 30,000,000 to 40,000,000 men and women were expected to vote before the closing of the polls in the western states for hundreds of major and minor public officials in an election that has been fought between the two old-line parties on the management of the war but, no matter how it turns out, will not change the determination and zeal of the American people to fight it to a finish.

The offices at stake are as follows: 33 United States senators, 432 representatives, 32 state governors and hundreds of lesser state and county officials.

A light vote was indicated, perhaps not more than 35 per cent of those eligible.

PRESIDENT ALERT

President Roosevelt will be watching closely the results tonight because he realizes the importance of this election. He remembers that President Woodrow Wilson lost control of the House of Representatives in 1918, an event that led to tragic repercussions—the disavowal of the Treaty of Versailles, the refusal of the United States to enter the League of Nations and introduction of the era of isolation that ended only Dec. 7 last.

In the voting today it is mathematically impossible for the Democratic Party to lose control of the Senate, but the Republicans could take control of the House of Representatives by holding all their seats and gaining 53 others.

It is generally agreed among political observers that the Republicans are due to make some gains in their House representation, but not enough to take control.

But Mr. Roosevelt will have another thought in mind when he looks over the returns tonight. It is generally agreed the Republicans will make gains among the state governors, perhaps winning the important and populous states of New York, California, and possibly Michigan and holding Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Ohio.

Although a fourth term may not be in President Roosevelt's mind these days, he is politician enough to know that any Democratic nominee in 1944 would face an uphill fight with the political machines of these key states aligned against him.

LONDON (AP) — A German effort in western Macedonia to recruit Greeks for war work in Germany so far has not been able to raise a corporal's guard, the free Greek Government here reported today. Despite Nazi threats that food cards would be withdrawn, only 60 Greeks were reported to have responded.

Firestone Rubber Wins Appeal on B.C. Income Tax

OTTAWA (CP) — An appeal by Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. of Canada Ltd., Hamilton, Ont., against tax assessments by the British Columbia commissioner of income tax was allowed by the Supreme Court of Canada in a judgment issued today.

Justice Patrick Kerwin and Mr. Justice A. B. Hudson dissented from the judgment.

The court was asked to decide whether sales in British Columbia of products of the Firestone Co. should be subject to provincial taxation when the head office and plant of the company is in Hamilton.

Firestone had a contract with MacKenzie, White & Dunsmuir Ltd. of British Columbia, granting them the exclusive right to sell Firestone products in certain parts of British Columbia with a reciprocal obligation not to handle goods of Firestone's competitors. Firestone contended the British Columbia company was not an agent but merely a distributor.

FILED RETURNS

The distributor, it was maintained, filed income tax returns and paid income on all profits made by the sale of Firestone products, and Firestone did not carry on business in British Columbia. The manufacturer's profit, it was contended, was made at Hamilton, outside the jurisdiction of the Province of British Columbia.

The commissioner of income tax argued the contract showed the distributor was receiving and selling Firestone tires on consignment and therefore earning income in the province and subject to tax. The commissioner demanded returns for the fiscal years 1927 to 1937 and the company agreed without prejudice to file returns, on which the commissioner subsequently levied an assessment of $9,577. The Firestone Co. appealed to the B.C. finance minister and the appeal was dismissed.

The case was then taken to the B.C. Supreme Court where Mr. Justice D. Murphy allowed the appeal and set aside the assessments. The B.C. Appeal Court reversed this judgment. The Supreme Court's judgment upholds the original finding of Mr. Justice Murphy.

More Nazi Claims Of Ship Sinkings

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts, AP) — The German high command said today in a communique:

In stubborn attacks lasting several days, the German U-boats sank out of the strongly-protected enemy convoy 16 ships totaling 94,000 tons, including three munitions ships which exploded after the first torpedo hit.

Kokoda Retaken, Japanese Landing Force Repulsed

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, AUSTRALIA (CP) — Allied ground forces captured the Japanese base at Kokoda, inland New Guinea, Monday, after a gruelling drive over the Owen Stanley Mountains, and were shoving the Japanese troops toward their coastal base at Buna today after medium and heavy Allied bombers had driven off an enemy convoy and set fire to a transport attempting to approach Buna with reinforcements.

Recapture of Kokoda highlighted a sharp turn in fighting in southeastern New Guinea, where the Japanese five weeks ago were within 32 miles of Port Moresby, the key Allied position on the island.

The Japanese, aware of the precarious position of their troops, attempted to send two transports with an estimated 7,000 soldiers to Buna to bolster their retreating forces, an Allied communique said today.

CONVOY ATTACKED

Allied heavy bombers sighted the transports escorted by a light cruiser, a destroyer and nine fighter planes and attacked as they were approaching Buna. Many near misses were scored in the first raid and five Japanese fighters were shot down.

Medium bombers then attacked Monday afternoon and dropped bombs which missed the transports only narrowly. The convoy withdrew.

At twilight the bombers struck again off the south coast of New Britain and scored a direct hit on one of the transports and near hits on both. One transport was last seen burning off Gasmata, on the south coast of New Britain, it was stated officially.

LANDED AT BUNA

The Japanese landed first at Buna July 22 and within two weeks had advanced 60 miles across New Guinea to Kokoda, a small village accommodating an airfield, rubber plantation and a number of buildings and native huts.

Allied forces offered little resistance to the Japanese push in the early stages. Backed by superior forces, the Japanese drove into the 8,000-foot Owen Stanley Mountains and by Sept. 16 they had fought their way through "The Gap" in the mountain range and were facing Allied troops at Torilawa, only 32 miles from Port Moresby. There the Allied defences stiffened and after 10 days of parrying, tough Australian troops forced the Japanese back and started the advance back over the mountains to Kokoda.

For weeks Allied fighters and bombers have been bombing and strafing the Japanese line of supply leading back to Buna and that coastal base has been visited almost daily. Between Kokoda and Buna, there is a trail leading through the difficult New Guinea jungle country.

Bao 2 Nazis

LONDON (CP) — Two of four enemy fighters which attacked the southwest coast of England this afternoon were destroyed by British fighters, it was stated authoritatively.

A lone raider, swooping from the cover of low clouds, dropped several bombs on an east England town. One struck a bus. Others fell in gardens.

11,000 tons and one destroyer and one corvette were torpedoed. Only a dispersed remnant of the convoy succeeded in escaping in the dense fog.

Today's WAR NEWS Analysis

By JOHN H. MARTIN

Associated Press Staff Writer

The 11-day-old push in Egypt has not yet developed into a full offensive, and because of this one would expect to hear of some backslapping and elation in Berlin or its branch office at Vichy over this apparent hesitancy on the part of the Army of the Nile. Curiously, there is neither in those two capitals.

Instead, Berlin and Vichy still talk of a possible Allied stroke against French west Africa in the belief the attack on Marshal Rommel's German and Nazi-stiffened Italian troops is a mere ploy to screen such a blow.

However, after more than a week of the new campaign, there is no sign that the main weight of the British and Axis armor is at grips.

The quite plausible explanation is that a formidable belt of Axis mines yet must be removed to clear the way. Perhaps, though, the British are counting on events that would force Rommel to disperse his manpower and equipment.

There are several areas where the Axis is vulnerable. Both sides know them and have advertised them in varying degrees. Far south of the Mediterranean coastal rim where the fighting has surged back and forth, the Fighting French of Gen. Charles de Gaulle hold the Kufra Oasis and the Lake Chad regions. A salient driven from those areas north to the coast would split the Axis troops and perhaps clear them forever out of Africa—a known Allied objective which some believe is an absolute necessity before an invasion of Europe is undertaken.

AXIS TALK

This threat, however, has been overshadowed by the persistent Axis theme that French west and north Africa offer the best possible avenues for Allied attack on the rear of Rommel's forces and his main base at Tripoli adjoining French Tunisia.

While the French speculate a lot about Dakar, they also talk of Casablanca, which is less than 250 miles south of Gibraltar. Women and children have been removed from Dakar "to permit us to resist with all our means of defence," says Pierre Bolson, governor of Dakar. Casablanca is ready for any attack, says the political opportunist, Admiral Jean Darlan, commander of French land, naval and air forces, who just made a fast and well-publicized tour of inspection in Africa.

All this whistling in the dark by Vichy followed reports of United States troop landings in French equatorial Africa and Liberia, south of Dakar, ship manoeuvres off the African coast, and British landing exercises at Gibraltar. German submarine packs also are known to have shifted their major hunting grounds from the Caribbean to the west African coast.

New Allocation Of Raw Materials Aids Production

WASHINGTON (CP) — Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, has announced a new system of allocating critical raw materials which he believes will have an appreciable effect in increasing war production in the United States.

Called the "controlled materials plan," it is patterned after the British and the German systems of allocating raw materials and was termed by one Canadian government official here "The most hopeful thing that has come out of W.P.B. since it started."

In its entirety, the control plan will not go into effect until next July, but when it does, it will mean that production schedules will be drafted on the basis of availability of raw materials and that the continuous flow of materials to war plants will not be interrupted by any factor except their availability.

One of several reasons for delaying the introduction of the control plan, Nelson said at a press conference, is that the United States will hit maximum wartime production some time before next July.

WILL HELP CANADA

The control plan has no direct effect on Canada, but indirectly it should help that portion of the Canadian war economy dependent on raw or processed materials originating in the United States because of the tight control it will exercise over the whole American wartime economy.

Canadian officials here said. The plan will apply, particularly, to steel, aluminum and copper, the first being of particular importance to Canada because one-third of Canada's wartime steel requirements comes from American mills.

As the plan is put into effect gradually between now and next July, it will force the most careful budgeting of materials that go into nearly every military and civilian article of manufacture, Nelson said.

By eliminating excessive or badly-timed use of materials, he said, it should increase production appreciably. By smoothing out production schedules and avoiding temporary shutdowns of some war plants for lack of materials, as happened this summer, he added, the plan ought also to provide steadier employment for labor.

TO CUT UP PIE

The plan treats the country's supply of steel and other basic materials like a big pie. The government will first measure the pie to see how big it is and then cut shares for the army, navy, civilian use, Allied nations and others. The recipients of these pieces will cut up their shares and give pieces to those who work with them.

Committee Boosts B.C. Victory Total To $100,000,000

VANCOUVER (CP) — National War Finance Committee officials today set a new objective of $100,000,000 for British Columbia and the Yukon as figures indicated the area would soon exceed its original quota of $75,000,000 in the Third Victory Loan drive.

Up until late yesterday a total of $71,052,300 in Victory bonds had been sold in the area, 95 per cent of the original quota.

In a statement announcing the new objective, George Kidd, chairman of the British Columbia Yukon division, stated "We of the B.C.-Yukon area can and must respond to the desire of the Dominion Government, the desire for absolute all-out effort to help win this war."

"Conditions today are much better than they were in the second war loan, yet in that second loan the citizens and firms of British Columbia and the Yukon forged past their objective and attained the sum of $93,500,650."

Axis Air Drive Smashed By Malta

LONDON (CP) — The air ministry described the mid-October air battle over Malta today as a "deliberate trial of strength" by the Axis and said that the enemy, with 1338 planes shot down, suffered such a disaster he had to call quits after 10 days.

Besides 131 planes shot down by fighters defending the Mediterranean island stronghold, the air ministry said, seven fell to anti-aircraft gunners and many more were probably destroyed.

It compared "infinitesimal" damage to Malta in the raids with the enemy's "staggering" losses.

The air ministry ranked October as the biggest of three air defeats for the Axis over Malta this year. Never before, it said, were so many planes destroyed in so short a time as in last month's conflict.

Up to Monday, it said, the official total of enemy planes downed over Malta was 1,094. The two heaviest defeats prior to October were the April-May period, in which 252 planes were destroyed, and last July, when 151 were shot down.

3 Children Die in Fire

CHURCHVILLE, Ont. (CP) — The three children of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Larocque, the eldest aged three, were burned to death in their beds here Monday night when fire swept through the two rooms of their frame summer cottage. They were: Lloyd, 3, Marie, 2 and Valerie, 9 months.

The fire, of unknown origin, started when the mother left the cottage to get paper to start a fire in the stove. She tried to enter the flaming building to rescue the children, but was held back by friends.

Firemen were hampered by lack of water and three other cabins were destroyed. Mrs. Larocque was taken to a hospital at Brampton.

British Execute Man for Treachery

LONDON (CP) — Duncan Alexander Croall Scott-Ford, a British subject, was executed today in Wandsworth Prison for treachery, the Home Office announced.

Scott-Ford was a 21-year-old British merchant seaman who made regular trips between Britain and Lisbon, Portugal.

In Lisbon, the announcement said, he was approached by a German agent and for payment of $72 supplied secret information concerning the merchant fleet, movements of convoys between Lisbon and Britain, weather conditions and aircraft production. He also promised additional data, the Home Office said.

"When Scott-Ford returned on a second visit to Lisbon with the information he had collected the Germans threatened they would expose him to British authorities unless he continued to perform further services, to collect more valuable information and to undergo greater risks in their interest," the announcement said.

MADE CONFESSION

After his arrest Scott-Ford admitted associating with German spies and making notes at the request of the German agents, the Home Office said. He also admitted that he "toured public houses, mixing with fellow seamen and members of the services in order to pump them for information in their possession," it was said.

He was convicted Oct. 16 at a secret trial and did not appeal the death sentence.

Scott-Ford is the third British subject to be convicted and hanged for treachery during this war. Eleven enemy agents have been executed, all except one by hanging.

The exception was Josef Jacobs, a German who was tried by a courtmartial and shot Aug. 15, 1941, in the Tower of London. During the last war 19 men were sentenced to death as spies.

Ganges

GANGES — Grades 9 and 10 of the Consolidated School at Ganges were guests at a surprise party given by grades 11 and 12 Friday afternoon, the time being spent in games and contests.

The Ladies' Aid of the United Church at Ganges held their annual sale of work at Ganges Inn. The sale was opened by Rev. J. Dewar. Stallholders were Mrs. W. M. Mout, Mrs. M. Lees, Miss A. Lees, Miss M. Oberaud, Mrs. E. Parsons, Mrs. B. Krebs, Mrs. F. Sharpe, Mrs. H. Nobbe, Mrs. H. Harcus, Mrs. R. Toynbee was convener. Mrs. C. Wagg and others served afternoon teas.

In honor of Ldg. Stoker and Mrs. Kenneth Kidson, the former Miss Doris Stevens, who were married recently in Victoria, a miscellaneous shower was given at the home of Mrs. G. Cunningham, Ganges, who together with Mrs. F. Sharpe and Mrs. F. Westcott were joint hostesses.

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Gulf Island Hospital at Ganges held their monthly meeting with Miss A. Lees presiding. A quantity of sewing was accomplished on new sheets.

Praise the Lord Pastor Scored

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Lieut. Howell Forgy, 34-year-old Presbyterian minister, who is credited with the phrase "Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition," is criticized by a Birmingham minister for his "un-chaplain-like language."

In a talk Monday before the Birmingham Pastors' Union, Rev. Harold J. Dudley, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, urged ministers of the city and country to make formal protest "against the publication of stories in newspapers containing profanity."

Lieut. Forgy was quoted recently that, while standing on the deck of a heavy cruiser during the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, he had exclaimed "we got one of those —" as a Japanese plane fell in flames. Later he used the expression "Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition" in urging on men who were breaking out ammunition for the cruiser's guns.

Australia Starts Loan Campaign

PERTH, Australia (AAP) — Prime Minister John Curtin said that not a single physically fit man in Australia is idle today, as he opened a $321,000,000 Austere loan campaign.

"The government makes no apology for imposing what is called austerity on Australians," Mr. Curtin said. "Australia and a great group of nations are struggling in the same cause, all are obliged to make the same sacrifices, and all are compelled to leave nothing undone to make us stronger."

Women's Association, First United Church, met Monday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. W. D. Dawson, in the chair. The devotion was taken by Mrs. McKeachie. Final arrangements were made for the concert to be given in the church on Nov. 23 by the noted American tenor, Mr. Luther King. The annual bazaar will be opened in the church schoolroom at 2.30 on Nov. 18. Installation of officers for 1943 will take place at the next meeting on Dec. 7.

BLACKOUT SANDWICHES Emergency Food For Hungry Families

ALL the family will praise your sandwiches if you will just avoid "flat taste" by the addition of H. P. Sauce. This is the secret to appetizing sandwiches.

"Blackout" Sandwiches are the latest wartime "novelty". To make them, whip together 1/2 lb. of cream cheese with 1 tablespoon of H. P. Sauce and 1/2 tablespoon of horseradish; then add a 3/4 oz. can of chopped beef and a tablespoon of butter until frothed. Break up fine and add to cheese mixture. Spread on buttered brown bread.

H. P. is a fine old English type, thick, fruity sauce. It is economical because it is concentrated. Try it on meat, fish, fowl, salads, soups, stews, etc. You'll be surprised at the wonderful flavour it gives foods.

German Nutrition Reported Better Than Last War

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal.—Germany will not face the food difficulties this winter, in all probability, that she did during the later years of the first World War, predicts Helen C. Farnsworth of the Food Research Institute of Stanford University in a report just published here on wartime food developments in Germany.

Even recent heavy air raids will not appreciably affect the food situation, she believes, although a severe breakdown in transportation might bring about such a result.

Food reserves in the Reich are reported as still sizable, though lower than last year.

In contrast to the last war, Germany's farm production and marketing system is much more efficiently operated. But labor shortage, especially since the Russian campaign, has become an increasingly acute problem. The most recent information reported 800,000 war prisoners had been put to work. Nearly 2,000,000 foreigners in all are now thought to be working on German farms. Despite the much higher labor supply situation, there seems to be no indication of the extreme labor shortage that was evident in 1916, Miss Farnsworth reports.

Principal nutritional aims of the Nazis are to maintain high production of bread grains and sugar beets, and expand production of oil-bearing plants, vegetables, potatoes and fodder crops. "Production of rapeseed, the chief oil-bearing crop, for example, has been more than tripled during the past three years."

Although there has been a continued deterioration in the food situation in Germany, compared with the 1916-18 period, the fat and oil rations are three to four times as great, sugar rations double, and even meat allowances are somewhat higher than those of World War I.

ERSATZ FOODS

But some meat preparations, like pork sausage, are no longer made wholly or even predominately of meat. Sausages are now made of a small amount of pork mixed with a large quantity of soybean meal and sometimes cereals. However, the high-protein soybeans are nearly a complete substitute for meat, many nutritionists have pointed out, so this is not as bad as it may seem.

"War bread" is another example of the Nazi food-stretching policy. Besides whole wheat flour, bread also contains rye, and barley has recently been added.

Nazis have had to take up their belts a good many notches, Miss Farnsworth indicates, but reduction of total calories consumed per capita seems to be small compared with their restricted diet during the last war. "The strict food-rationing system with its special allowances for heavy workers, the establishment of government-sponsored industrial canteens, and the governmental price stabilization program which has prevented prices of the scarcer 'protective' foods from advancing to levels at which only the rich could buy, have all contributed toward proper feeding of the German civilian population," Miss Farnsworth declares.

"In addition, the distribution of vitamin C tablets to urban children and expectant mothers, the required fortification of margarine with vitamin A, the governmental milk program for children, and sponsorship of ersatz products made from soybeans and other protein-rich and vitamin-rich foods have probably gone far to prevent malnutrition among German civilian consumers," she concludes.

Investigations have determined the specially balanced meals for the armed forces which are adapted to the various conditions of army operations.

Payroll Savings Plan Features Victory Loan

OTTAWA (CP)—Subscriptions to the Third Victory Loan up to close of business yesterday totaled $661,281,700, and Monday subscriptions were $51,000,000, national loan headquarters announced today.

Monday was the 13th business day of the campaign which opened Oct. 19 and ends next Saturday. The cumulative total at the same period of the second victory loan last February was $579,151,350, but the minimum objective then was $600,000,000 and this time it is $750,000,000.

Average daily subscriptions since the present campaign began amounted to a little under $51,000,000. If that average is maintained, the objective of the drive should be attained by close of business Wednesday.

A subscription of $12,000,000 from the National Unemployment Insurance Commission was reported to headquarters during the week-end, and it was included in the two weeks' cumulative total.

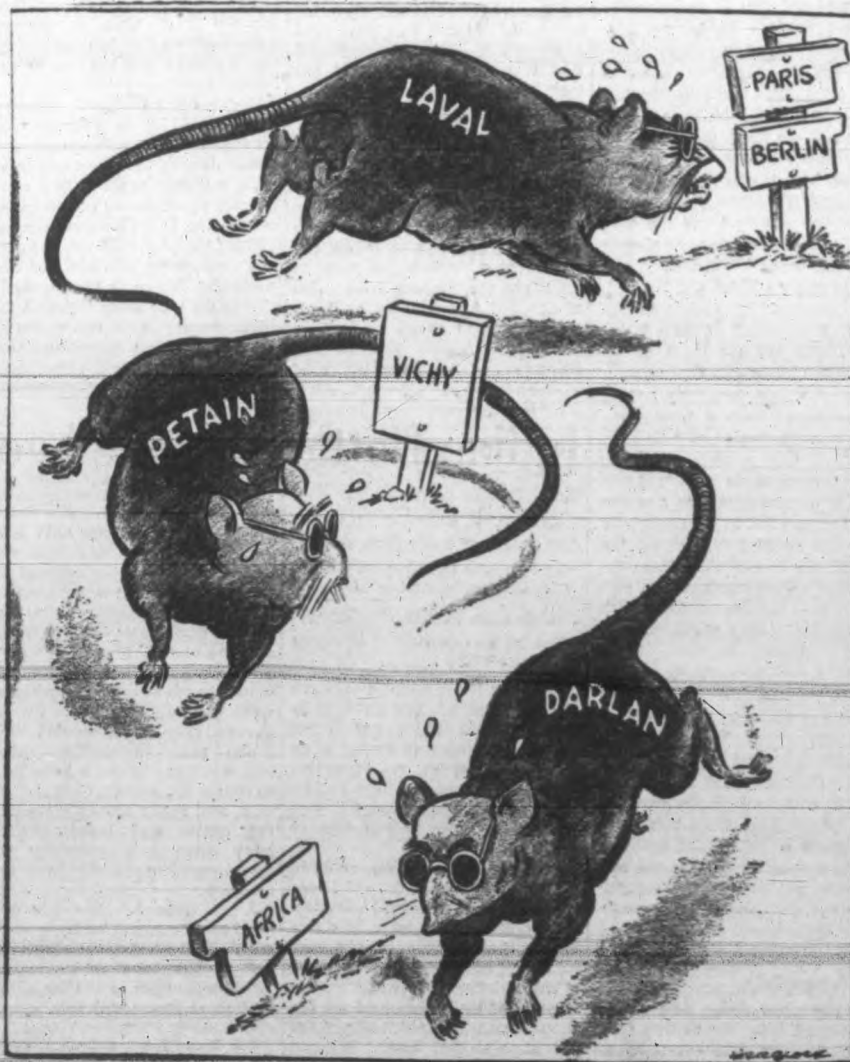

LARGE SUBSCRIPTIONS

Other large subscriptions were: North American Life Assurance Co., Toronto; $5,000,000; Canada Packers Ltd., Toronto, $2,500,000; the Borden Co. Ltd., Toronto, $600,000; Dome Mines Ltd., Toronto; $750,000; Government of the Province of Quebec, $1,500,000; Howard Smith Paper Mills and subsidiary companies, $1,000,000.

Previously announced was a subscription from Ontario Paper Co. Ltd., and its subsidiary, North Shore Paper Co. Ltd., of $3,000,000.

Hongkong Prisoner Lists Now 1,342

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian (Active) Army in its 1935th casualty list of the war Monday night announced 74 more men of the Royal Rifles of Canada, Quebec, as now officially reported prisoners of war as a result of the fight for Hongkong last December.

The new list, like one issued shortly before, was made up entirely of warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men. The earlier list contained 75 names, all members of the Royal Rifles of Canada.

The only western Canadian in the list was Rfmn. Frederick Kyrleuk of Vital, Man.

The two together raised to 1,342 the total number of Canadians officially reported prisoners at Hongkong. Of this number, 576 were members of the Royal Rifles of Canada, two were chaplains and most of the remaining 772 were members of the Winnipeg Grenadiers.

11,000 Lives Lost, Cattle Destroyed By Bengal Storm

LONDON (CP)—British press reports from India said today that 11,000 persons or more lost their lives last month during a cyclone which devastated sections of Bengal province.

Reuters news agency said not fewer than 10,000 persons perished in Midnapore and 1,000 in Parganas, adjacent districts along the Bengal coast near Calcutta.

Seventy-five per cent of the cattle in the affected districts were lost, it added.

The cyclone began on the morning of Oct. 16, rising in the Bay of Bengal, and lasted until early the following day. During the afternoon, a high tidal wave broke on the mainland.

Heavy rains accompanied the cyclone. Practically every house in the stricken districts was either destroyed or severely damaged, the reports said.

The storm was the greatest disaster in India since the Quetta earthquakes killed 40,000 persons and devastated hundreds of miles of the countryside in 1935.

New Mosquito Plane Made Mostly of Wood; 2 Rolls-Royce Engines

TORONTO — Now being manufactured in Canada, Britain's new twin-engine reconnaissance bomber, the Mosquito, is constructed mainly of wood, it is revealed. This fast machine, whose actual speed is a military secret, took part in the Victory Loan demonstration here.

The Mosquito is being built by the DeHavilland Co. throughout the empire for the British government. It is being manufactured in Canada by the same company under the supervision of the department of munitions and supply.

ONE OF STRONGEST

LONDON — The air ministry said today the new Mosquito bomber "is powered by two Rolls-Royce engines. It carries a surprisingly formidable bomb load and four cannon and four machine-guns. Crews of two sit side by side with a magnificent view forward."

"Probably it is one of the strongest airplanes in existence. Furthermore, its wooden construction lends itself to very widely dispersed manufacture."

"The new aircraft outdistanced Germany's fastest fighter over Oslo and bombed targets far inside Germany during daylight last Tuesday."

New Wonder Plane Flies Like Bullet Ahead of Own Sound

By RONALD WILLIAMS — TORONTO.—To use the expression of one of the men who helped make it, the first Canadian-built Mosquito flies "like a bullet." I stood beside that workman on a Canadian airfield and can verify it, for what we and a few other fortunate spectators saw was enough to send shivers down the spine of the most boastful Nazi.

We saw a slim, two-motored machine wheel across the field, swing around at the end of the north-south runway and gun the motors in a final check before taking off. The mighty engines were unexpectedly quiet, belying the tremendous power under each nacelle.

The take-off was incredible. The plane rolled across the runway, gathered speed and lifted clear. It rose to about 100 feet above the ground and roared across the field at that height. It didn't look right. I thought something was wrong. Normally the plane should climb steadily when airborne. I couldn't help saying, "Holy smoke, something's wrong!"

CLIMBS STRAIGHT UP

That's when the pilot pulled the nose up and the Mosquito began climbing almost vertically at an unbelievable speed. It went up and up like a rocket until it vanished in the brilliant sunlight sky. Seconds later it dived like a comet, screaming across the field at close to 500 miles per hour.

It leveled off about 500 feet over the field and crossed at an amazing speed... so fast that the roar of its twin motors trailed the silver monoplane by at least 300 yards. To follow the aerial wonder, I had to turn my head like a spectator watching a tennis match.

It was a fascinating, spine-tingling experience; watching the Canadian version of the machine which made rubble of the Nazi Gestapo headquarters in Oslo; the machine which, after unloading its bombs, took on Germany's newest and best fighters, the Focke-Wulf 190, and out-fought and out-flew them.

GRUELLING TEST

The pilot, a noted aviation designer and manufacturer, put the Mosquito through as gruelling a test as it will be subjected to in combat and it came through with flying colors. It seemed to handle with the ease of a baby carriage.

The pilot swung the machine out of one vertical banked turn into another in the opposite direction. The plane winged over with effortless ease. Then the pilot showed how unusually tight a circle the plane could turn in. This is an all-important quality, as the plane which can make the tightest turn is the victor in a dog fight. So far British aircraft have always been superior in this regard.

Also demonstrated was the Mosquito's ability to do the most intricate manoeuvres with only one engine. The machine flew for several minutes with the port engine stopped and performed a number of tight turns, steep turns, long gliding dives and steep climbs.

Let's ALL Go Over the Top
With a Share in the

VICTORY LOAN Malleks

HAIR-RAISING MANOEUVRES

With both engines going it did perfect slow rolls no more than 100 feet above the ground. The pilot executed two hair-raising loops out of dives which brought him down to 50 feet over the field. Then he did a manoeuvre I've never seen done before, a vertical or upward roll and then, instead of falling off to regain speed lost in the roll, he kept it climbing until it vanished.

Acknowledged by all who know its performance to be the swiftest, most deadly warplane in the world, the Mosquito brought gasps of awe from expert and layman alike. Even veterans like Air Marshal L. S. Breadner, chief of staff, R.C.A.F., other air force officers and government officials, gasped like boys at a three-ring circus, as the plane went through its places.

It was for the air marshal and department of munitions and supply officials, led by J. S. McCurdy, the first man to fly in the British Empire, that the demonstration was held.

Claimed by the British to be the much sought-after all-purpose warplane, the Mosquito can be used as a day fighter, night fighter, reconnaissance machine and medium bomber.

The Mosquito has been described as the warplane which will go down in history as the greatest machine of the day.

Boy's Bomb Dropped

Donald has received this letter from the squadron leader in the R.A.F. coastal command:

Modest Communiques

NEWS FROM CAIRO AS THIS IS WRITTEN suggests that the long-expected test of the tanks has now begun in earnest. The latest official communique, like those which have preceded it since the 8th Army began its offensive 12 days ago, is as meagre and matter-of-fact as those of the winter of 1941-42 were fulsome and over-optimistic.

This, of course, is all to the good. Well do we remember how even Mr. Churchill himself informed the world less than a year ago that the second westward push was the first undertaken with equipment to match the enemy's—as it was. But after General Auchinleck's men had reached El Aghella, half way across Libya, the Germans held. Then last May, Rommel struck back and maintained his eastward progress—taking 30,000 British prisoners at Tobruk—until he had reached a point only 80 miles from the great naval base of Alexandria. There our side held until General Sir Harold Alexander gave the word to Lt.-Gen. B. M. Montgomery to begin the large-scale attempt to destroy the Axis armies and their equipment. And the progress described by the dispatches in the first 12 days of this crucial battle can be taken literally at its face value.

It will soon be two years since General Sir Archibald Wavell sent his comparatively small and poorly-equipped force against 250,000 Italians under Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, replete with monuments to be set up in Egypt in celebration of their expected triumphs. All Libya might have fallen if that memorable drive could have been continued; but the 8th Army was stopped because it was weakened to reinforce the Balkan front, and because the badly-defeated Italians were strengthened by large reinforcements from Germany under Rommel. He, being the resourceful general he is, promptly capitalized on the skeletonized Empire forces. Only Tobruk, 80 miles from Libya's eastern frontier, held out under siege; and there followed a period during which each side built up its strength. Of the second advance and the subsequent retreat, during last May and June, the less said the better.

But since the British stand at El Alamein four months ago, there is reason to believe that it is our side, despite the long haul of supplies, which has received greater reinforcements in men, guns, tanks, and, above all, aircraft—factors which, to some extent no doubt, had removed the supposed need for extravagant and often dangerous phraseology. Indeed, the outside world received the first account of the cost to Rommel of his foray against the British lines in September from Mr. Wendell Willkie, who announced that the chief of the Afrika Korps had lost 40 per cent of his "punch"—a fact confirmed officially only the other day.

Still an Oil Battle

EVACUATION BY THE RUSSIAN forces of a point in the Caucasus of which Nalchik is the centre furnishes new evidence of Germany's frantic bid for the oil at Baku. In this area the Wehrmacht seems to have a preponderance in men, armor and planes. Regardless of whether Hitler will be able to tap the main source of the Soviet's liquid fuel if his armies eventually succeed in reaching their distant objective, or whether the "scorched earth policy" which the Russians have carried out effectively so far would completely cheat him of his prize, it is growing increasingly clear that without new supplies of oil at an early date the enemy may have to readjust his whole plan of campaign against the United Nations.

In view of our ally's withdrawal along the Nalchik plateau, however, the question again persists: Has Russia enough oil for the campaign she will be compelled to wage through the winter and next spring and summer if she is denied supplies from Baku? By another token, incidentally, what will Germany's position be if she finds the cupboard bare? Dr. Fritz Sternberg, an authority on military economics and war potentials, and a German who has vigorously fought Nazism since the Munich Putsch, has a reply. He thinks the enemy may be able to get oil from Malkop—whose wells and installations the Russians put out of business before the Germans occupied the city—by the end of the present year, if their pipeline plans are successful. But he is careful to explain that Premier Stalin's far-sightedness anticipated such a contingency by accumulating large-scale reserves. For example, in numerous communities installations for the storage of oil had been erected before the German attack nearly a year and a half ago, and since then production has been increased enormously, which means also a similar increase of stocks far from the danger zones.

Baku in German hands, of course, would be a sad blow to the Soviet Union—her war and domestic economy—but if Hitler does not get the oil he so badly needs, the oil for which the whole campaign in the south-east was designed, the huge losses the Wehrmacht has sustained in the Stalingrad area and in attempts to reach the oilfields of Grozny will present him with new difficulties this winter. The Fuehrer may cast his eyes toward Iran, or Turkey, or he may try a new drive to the Caspian; in any case, however, his troops are a long way from home and time is running short.

Still More Required

YESTERDAY WAS THE 13TH BUSINESS day of Canada's Third Victory Loan campaign, and the total amount subscribed toward the nominal minimum figure of $750,000,000 last night had reached $661,281,700. The cumulative total for the same period of the Second Victory Loan last February was $579,151,350; but let it not be forgotten that the minimum objective on that occasion was $600,000,000, not three-quarters of a billion. Nevertheless, when the books closed on the spring issue almost a billion had been loaned—a happy augury for the subscription of at least that sum by the end of this week.

There is no hesitation in making that prediction; the payrolls of the country in the last eight months have increased considerably, while on the day the Third Victory Loan opened on October 19 it was no secret that the accounts in the savings banks of the Dominion were at least as large as they were after Mr. Ilsley had gathered in the whole of the proceeds of Victory Loan No. 2.

During the remaining days of the campaign, however, there exists a fine opportunity for hundreds of citizens of this and other communities to check over their accounts and weigh the respective merits of a static balance—no doubt in many cases a substantial one, and earning only a small rate of interest—and withdrawal of at least some part of it for conversion into Third Victory Loan Bonds, the investment in which, of course, guarantees double the earning power of this idle money.

But that is not all by any means. By tapping these static balances, and this is a vital point, our fighting men will know that they will obtain more tools with which to do their job, while the more money Mr. Ilsley can collect by the voluntary loaning method—in itself good business all round—the less he will find it necessary to extract from the taxpayer by compulsory methods later on.

Students and War

HEADS OF COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES across the country are warning male students of military age that if they do not come up to certain standards of proficiency they will be dropped from classes and thereby forfeit the exemption from military draft granted them as students. This is as it should be. Our colleges have not the facilities at this time for other than earnest students and those able to profit fully by the opportunities of training offered.

The Military Service Act provides for exemption with the provision that "a certificate granted on the grounds of the continuance of education or training shall be a conditional certificate only." Educational authorities are thus empowered to set the terms on which student status will be granted. The tendency now is away from granting exemption in favor of arts and other so-called purely cultural courses and toward restricting application of exemption to medical, science and engineering courses. This is because of the need of trained technical men in the fighting services and in war industry. Presidents of at least two of our universities have challenged this attitude toward the purely cultural courses, but it would seem that under increased pressure from manpower requirements it may not be long before arts courses are ruled out for military eligibles in all colleges.

At Victoria College and the University of British Columbia, where registrations show men outnumber women nearly two to one this term, most of the men indicate they are going in for scientific or technical work. This is fortunate, as there is an increasing need for them. It is encouraging, too, that these youths are willing to forego the temptations of high wages today in order to train themselves for specialized work tomorrow. Our progress in the war and in the reconstruction days thereafter will depend largely on such men.

Only Teamwork Matters

CRITICS OF THE RESPECTIVE WAR efforts of the countries which constitute the United Nations coalition might do worse than take to heart the comment of an American who arrived in London last Saturday. He put it this way: "Why argue about who is doing the most? Nobody is doing enough; and there is plenty of war to go round." That was well said. And Mr. Herbert Morrison, Minister of Home Security, went down to Cardiff on Sunday and unburdened himself of a few facts about Britain's contribution to freedom's cause which also needed to be said. Among other points with which he regaled his audience were the following:

Britain's output of war material in all its forms is greater per capita than any other nation in the world—ally or enemy. Britain's shipbuilding per head is twice that of any other nation in the world. The Royal Navy has destroyed more than 6,000,000 tons of enemy shipping since the beginning of the war—and 125 enemy fighting ships as well. Britain has exported and is exporting to various parts of the world no less than 80 per cent of her war output. And the British Navy has conveyed safely into port 199 out of every 200 merchantmen so guarded. Add to this the fact that vessels flying the white ensign continually have to look after between 2,000 and 3,000 cargo-carrying ships that are at all times on the high seas, and the job can be considered in proper perspective.

This global war is not a football match where the glory goes to the player who actually scores the goal. Teamwork wins the day. The job to beat the Axis is one for the team known as the United Nations. And "Nothing Matters Now But Victory."

HONEST MEN

THERE ARE A LOT of fine fellows in the Conservative Party of Canada and some especially fine ones in the Conservative Party of British Columbia. There never was a finer man in office in this province than the newly-appointed minister, Ernest Carson, who calls himself a Conservative but, like all Conservatives and all Liberals, is part of the vast bubbling confusion of party labels in this country and in all democratic countries. The main thing is that he is the best type of man we can get into our politics, more liberal in his views than many professing Liberals.

Another good man who was over here recently is Howard Green. He made a speech to the local Conservative Party which is interesting and important, because it shows at a glance the difficulties ahead of us. Mr. Green is a man of the highest character and of very high ability and has performed a most useful function in the Parliament of Canada in criticizing the King government, which badly needs it from time to time. But Mr. Green comes to Victoria and, in our warm, genial climate, falls into immediate confusion. His confusion is so general and widespread not only among politicians but among the rest of us that it is worth examining.

BUREAUCRACY

MR. GREEN BEGINS by denouncing the C.C.F. and its plan to build up a huge bureaucracy in Canada. This is a perfectly reasonable point of view. And, contrarywise, the recent statements of Mr. Coldwell deploring the growth of bureaucracy in Canada, is quite incredible; for if Mr. Coldwell is elected and the C.C.F. takes office we shall have a bureaucracy which will make the present proliferating civil service of Canada appear small and inconsequential.

The Socialist state may produce Utopia (or may not), but one thing is certain—it cannot operate without building up a gigantic administrative machine, a bureaucracy capable of running every productive enterprise, and the managers of the local sawmills of Victoria, the paint factory, the roofing factory and every other productive enterprise will be employees of the government bureaucracy.

Mr. Coldwell, a clever man and a good one, does not fail to understand that. He understands it very well. What he is deploring is a bureaucracy which is not Socialist. Bureaucrats are all right under the control of the C.C.F. They are dangerous under the control of the Liberals or Conservatives. That is what Mr. Coldwell must mean and he can make out a case for it, no doubt.

But let us not imagine that we can have either Socialism or the reforms advocated by Mr. Green without bureaucracy. That is the trouble with Mr. Green's speech. He wants government for the common man. He wants all kinds of better conditions. In general, I have no doubt, he endorses the Port Hope platform erected by the young, nonprofessional members of his party, and this platform calls for enormous new state interventions in business. It finally says that the state must give everyone a job, if he can't get it in private industry.

THE PAYROLL

FOR ALL THIS A CASE can be made; but no case can be made for the proposition that these reforms can be effected without an enormous growth in the machinery of government and the creation of a swarming new bureaucracy. At last count, the federal government was employing 112,115 civil servants as against 63,660 before the war. That is a sizeable increase, and some 9,476 are not employed directly in war work, although they are probably needed because of the extra pressure of war.

So, without the Conservative reforms and without Mr. Coldwell, we are developing a bureaucracy of large dimensions and enormous power, as we must do in a war. Now let us be frank about it. Let us ask Mr. Coldwell and Mr. Green to be frank about it. The fact is that this bureaucracy will remain after the war and will increase if we are going to embark upon the reforms which have been endorsed by Mr. King, the Port Hope conference and the C.C.F., and, so far as I know, opposed by no one of importance. And the whole Conservative Party, doubtless, will endorse them at its Winnipeg convention next month.

So, as far as we can see, the nation already is embarked on such a program—and it will cost money, and it will involve enormous administrative machinery. It is bound to come. The sensible man will not attempt to stop this inevitable tide and the man of good will cannot fail to support these plans for increasing social justice. But the sensible man will try to see that these reforms are managed as economically as possible, that they are not overloaded with political appointments, time servers, patronage and political machines.

For Mr. Coldwell to deplore bureaucracy, for Mr. Green to deplore bureaucracy and still promise a vast program of social reform merely confuses the public. This confusion, carried far enough, will lead to all sorts of results that Mr. Coldwell and Mr. Green do not desire. It will lead to the election of men far less honest than they, men who will promise all kinds of things for nothing. The basic fact to remember is that we can never get anything out of government for nothing, and we are going to pay for every social reform we inaugurate. In hard cash.

Amazing Highway Job

By ERIC SANDERSON

Construction of the Alaska Highway—vital link in the vast North American defence scheme—has been a race against time.

The 1,599-mile highway from Dawson Creek to Fairbanks, Alaska, now, however, is receiving the finishing touches and traffic is expected to roll over its entire length by Dec. 1.

Starting last March 9, the men staged a race with the spring thaw to transport supplies over the Peace River. Now they are having a race with winter to slash remaining uncompleted links.

The United States Army Corps of Engineers took on a tough job when they started construction. The troops arrived at Dawson Creek March 9. Their first job was to transport supplies from that point, end of steel for Northern Alberta Railways. Equipment trains rolled into the Creek and men worked day and night to unload the flat cars. Citizens of the town, truckmen, garagemen, traders, guides, all helped to get the supplies to headquarters at Fort St. John, 50 miles north of Dawson Creek, before the spring thaw, expected in mid-April.

A road existed between Dawson Creek and Fort St. John. It crossed the Peace River, frozen solid in winter. Ferries are used to cross in summer, but there is an "in-between season" of three weeks or more before the boats can operate. A sudden thaw in early April almost stopped the steady flow of supplies, and trucks could make the crossing only during the coldest hours late at night. Finally the last load was over—and the river ice broke up behind it. The first obstacle had been mastered. All that was left was to build the road.

CONTRACTORS' PART

Meanwhile, the Public Roads Administration set up offices at Edmonton, since transferred to Fort St. John, and from there hired Canadian and American civilian contractors to follow the army corps, whose job was to construct the pioneer road. Job of the P.R.A. engineers and surveyors was to check grades and elevations, design bridges and culverts and measure out road allowances.

Indian Battle of Long Ago

From Comox Argus

Irrefutable evidence of an Indian battle or some dark deed of long ago was the discovery of an arrowhead in the skull of an Indian dug up by Francis Graham when he was making a driveway into his new house on the Courtenay River near the Courtenay city limits. The skull is in perfect preservation, but lodged behind the nose was the tip of an arrowhead, which, no doubt entered his eye and had been broken off inside the skull. There it was, witness to some Indian raid or foray.

Several other skulls, not in such good preservation, and bones enough to make several complete skeletons were found a few feet below the surface in the rich black soil of the Courtenay River. There have always been legends of an Indian raid on the Courtenay tribe, which wiped out nearly all the band. William Duncan found many skeletons

Canadian contractors were hired to clear the right of way between Dawson Creek and Fort St. John. Route of the original road between these points was changed as it was not in line with specifications of the P.R.A. The contractors gave the stretch primary layers of heavy rock and in some cases applied the final layer of gravel.

Now army engineers who tore a path through from Fort St. John to Fort Nelson—a distance of about 300 miles—have been sent farther north to aid men who throughout the summer have been cutting their way from Watson Lake, Yukon, just north of the British Columbia border. Another group has been working southward from Whitehorse since last spring. Still another group, which started at Fairbanks, is hacking its way through near the Alaska-Yukon border.

MANY PESTS

The men had to work in intense heat during the summer and staged a further battle against swarms of mosquitoes, black flies and horse flies during the evenings. Sleeping proved a major problem, but the men survived and today the long-hoped-for highway stretches through to the north.

Bridges have been built and forest hacked through, so that for the first time in history motorized traffic can travel between Alaska and the rest of the North American continent.

Under an agreement between the United States and Canada, construction of the highway was undertaken by the army engineers as a military project, but after the war the highway will be taken over by the Canadian government. Over the road will roll supplies and equipment to Canadian and American forces in the north.

Persons who have traveled the route report it is not a rutted wagon trail or pioneer road, but an artery which will afford two-way traffic over most stretches.

REALLY, I DON'T ENJOY TEA SO MUCH NOW. I HAVE TO MAKE IT SO WEAK.

THERE'S NO NEED TO DRINK WISHY-WASHY TEA—LIPTON'S IS ALWAYS FULL-FLAVOURED.

The quality and flavor of Lipton's have made it world famous as an "Empire Tea" that "before long" will be your grocer for Lipton's today.

● If you think you must drink insipid and wishy-washy tea just because you are rationed, you'll be surprised and delighted with your first cup of Lipton's. For Lipton's includes select "small leaf" teas grown exclusively in Lipton's own gardens in Ceylon. They help to give Lipton's such character, such full-bodied richness and satisfying flavour, that you not only enjoy it more but get more cups for your tea coupons.

FOR MEN AT SEA

Goat's milk cheese for Norwegian sailors, holy bread for Poles, dried fruit for Greeks, special dainties for Fighting French and Free Belgians and Chinese and Yugoslavs and all the other seamen from countries now under the Nazi heel who are serving in the Allied navies—all these must be secured and packed before Nov. 15 if the Allied Post is going to fill its quota of 2,000 Christmas parcels. In addition to these special gifts, each parcel will contain at least one warm woolen garment, cigarettes, a chocolate bar and such useful articles as tooth brushes, razor blades and writing paper. Contributions and gifts may be sent to the Allied Post headquarters, room 209, Medico-Dental Building, 1306 St. Catherine St. W., Montreal.

Recent donations include a cheque for $300, raised by the pupils of "The Study" in Montreal, $100 from an American woman who lived in Greece for many years, and a monthly contribution from the War Efforts Committee of the Canadian Jewish Congress of $25. Six gramophones and many records have also been received and are being distributed to various ships—one large cabinet machine was sent to a sailors' club in the St. Pierre and Miquelon Islands.

Committee appeals to all who wish to make Christmas happy for these men from the occupied countries to contribute gifts suitable for the purpose. Always welcome are razors and blades, tooth brushes, shaving cream, writing paper and envelopes, handkerchiefs and woolen articles.

Gladys Hindmarch Now Captain In British A.T.S.

Of much interest to Victoria friends, especially to members of the I.O.D.E., is the news of the promotion of Gladys Hindmarch to the rank of captain in the "Territorials" in Britain, according to cable advice received by her father, Robert H. Hindmarch of Nanaimo.

A native daughter of Nanaimo, Capt. Hindmarch was regent of the Malaspina Chapter, I.O.D.E., there for six years, and for a time was standard-bearer of the Provincial Chapter. Before leaving for England in 1940 to enlist in the A.T.S., she was on the reporting staff of a Vancouver newspaper.

After arriving in Britain she was on duty during many of the heavy air raids during the first years of the war. When she moved to Scotland she was commissioned as a second lieutenant, and last Oct. 3 was promoted to full lieutenant.

At Formal Opening of Red Cross Exhibit

Mrs. W. C. Woodward, right, discusses with the artist the portrait of Miss Laura Magrath by Myfanwy. Below, right, Mrs. Woodward caught by the Times cameraman as she formally opens the exhibition of portraits by Myfanwy.

"British Columbia, and indeed Canada in general, as well as Victoria in particular, has every reason to be proud of this young artist and I feel confident that her fame will spread internationally," said Mrs. W. C. Woodward, in formally opening the Red Cross exhibition of portraits by Myfanwy Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Woodward expressed her sense of very real personal pleasure in performing the ceremony, and a warm tribute to the work of the young artist. "Myfanwy has already established a reputation in art circles throughout Canada which refutes the oft-quoted 'A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country,'" continued Mrs. Woodward, as she recalled that the artist had recently won the popularity award at the Vancouver Art Gallery for her portrait of "Trudie."

Mrs. Woodward also seized the opportunity to congratulate Mr. J. W. Spencer upon the new art gallery in which the portraits were exhibited on the second floor of David Spencer Ltd., this filling a long-felt need in Victoria.

Mr. Stewart G. Clark, acting president of the Victoria branch of the Red Cross, welcomed the large and representative gathering. Before introducing Mrs. Woodward he congratulated the young artist, who had won for herself a very high place in Canadian art circles.

Mr. Clark announced that Myfanwy had offered also to exhibit the collection in Vancouver, Toronto and other eastern cities. Not only the admission fees but the proceeds of all commissions received by the young artist would go to swell the coffers of the Red Cross, which needed such help very urgently at the present time and would need even more should the much-mooted second front materialize. On behalf of the Red Cross, Mr. Clark thanked Myfanwy for her most generous gesture.

In acknowledging the good wishes for her own success and that of the exhibition, Myfanwy thanked all those who had sat for her and made the exhibition possible, and expressed her appreciation of the co-operation she had received from the Red Cross.

Persia, Old and New, Described to League

An intimate picture of life in Persia was sketched by Mrs. A. Ord Butters for the members of the Overseas League at its meeting held Monday afternoon at the Empress Hotel. Sir Robert Holland was in the chair.

Mrs. Butters and her husband lived in Persia for a number of years, and from her experiences she compared the Iran of today and the old Persia under the Shahs, touching upon the customs, habits and politics of the people. Mrs. A. S. Christie thanked the speaker on behalf of the league.

Following the address the honorary corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. G. MacDonald, reported that the sum of $117 had been sent to London during the month and since January 1 a total of $815.70 had been sent. A shipment of clothing left Victoria recently, making a total of 12 shipments since Jan. 1. Letters of gratitude had been received by Mrs. MacDonald, one from the Netherlands' legation and another stating that several cases of "exquisite garments" had been sent to Malta. Mrs. A. L. Darrell gave the wool and knitting report. The annual meeting of the league will be held on the first Monday in January; the December meeting will take place as usual.

ENGAGEMENTS

GRAVES-BEAN

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Bean, 1322 Camosun Street, announce the engagement of their elder daughter, Alicia Mitchell (Betty), to Lt. John Harold Greaves, only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Greaves, 638 Victoria Avenue. The wedding will take place at 10:30 a.m. Friday, Nov. 20, in the First United Church, Quadra Street. Rev. Hugh A. MacLeod officiating.

PHILLIPSON-CHARLEBOIS

The engagement is announced of Mary Ann, youngest daughter of Mrs. A. L. Charlebois, 1513 Camosun Street, and the late Mr. Charlebois, to Mr. Clement John Phillipson, coxswain, R.C.N.F.R., son of Mrs. F. E. Phillipson, of Prince Rupert, B.C., and the late Mr. A. J. Phillipson. The wedding will take place at the Bishop's House, Nov. 14.

W.B.A. Celebrate 50th Anniversary

Mrs. Caroline O'Brien, Vancouver, provincial field director of the Women's Benefit Association, officially opened the bazaar held Monday afternoon by the Victoria Review, which was followed by a banquet in the evening, marking the 50th anniversary of that association. The bazaar netted the review approximately $200, which will be divided between the Red Cross and war effort. Mrs. M. Mattison was a capable general convener and others assisting and in charge of stalls were: Mrs. F. Baillies, baby stall; Mrs. M. Thompson, fancywork; Mrs. S. McNeil, aprons; Mrs. S. Addison, home cooking, and Mrs. M. Laird, chicken dinner. Mrs. H. Barraclough was in charge of the contest.

Mrs. O'Brien was guest of honor at the banquet, and later in the evening addressed the members, reporting on the supreme convention held in Chicago in July, when she was re-elected supreme lady of ceremonies for the third term. The Women's Benefit Association was organized at Grand Island, New York, on March 1, 1891, and 71 of the original members are living in different parts of the United States.

Mrs. K. Schmelz was general convener of the banquet, and Mrs. S. Cameron, tea convener. Later cards were played under the management of Mrs. A. Ritchie, assisted by Mrs. W. Hensen.

HI-Y GRAD CLUB

The HI-Y Grad Club of the Y.W.C.A. held the annual election of officers at its recent meeting. Results were as follows: President, Mary McLorie, vice-president, Joyce Gordon, secretary, treasurer, Ella Marr; music convener, Marjorie Attwell; social convener, Pat Robertson. This club, which meets every Thursday at 8 at the Y.W.C.A., is planning an active season of service work, as well as social and educational features. Any girls interested in joining are invited to contact Mary McLorie at G 2777, or Ella Marr at G 5012.

319 Donors Needed To Fill Blood Bank

There are still 319 blood donors needed to bring the blood bank up to full capacity, reported Mrs. W. B. Wilson, on Monday, at the meeting of the Junior W.A. to the Royal Jubilee Hospital, under whose auspices the Blood Transfusion Bureau is being conducted.

Plans for the dolls' bazaar to be held Wednesday, Dec. 2, at the Nurses' Home, are meeting with success. Mrs. Conway Parrott, convener, reported on the progress of the affair, and Mrs. M. Morten made a request that dolls dressed for the bazaar be turned into the Nurses' Home clearly marked with the name of the member. Mrs. K. R. F. Denniston asked for donations for the public market stall at the bazaar.

Mrs. H. Robinson stated that the bandaging committee had completed 4,908 bandages during the month. Mrs. J. U. Copeman for the diet committee reported four cases being carried on and one new case received. Mrs. R. H. Green, in referring to the knitting committee, suggested that any member in doubt as to the location of the meeting should call her or Mrs. C. L. Aylard for information. Mrs. R. Newell, reporting on vocational work, asked members for beads, and announced the next vocational meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. L. Aylard, St. Charles Street. Mrs. P. S. Howden stated that 17 hospital and six home visits had been made. Mrs. G. H. Simons said that the Thrift Shop is in need of new stock.

It was announced that the children's party will be held Dec. 30, at the Nurses' Home, with Mrs. C. L. Aylard as general convener.

The W.A. to the Canadian Dental Corps met at the Y.W.C.A. Monday, with Mrs. J. C. Foote presiding. Seventeen members were present. The vice-president, Mrs. W. A. MacDonald, read several letters of appreciation from men overseas for cigarettes sent from the auxiliary. Next meeting will be Dec. 7, at the Y.W.C.A.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Philp of Victoria are spending a two-day vacation at Vancouver, where they are guests at Sylvia Court.

Mrs. Reeves Cawley left Victoria today to spend a few days in Vancouver as the guest of Mrs. Harold Caple.

Mrs. Lennox Irving has returned to her home on Foul Bay Road after spending some time in the east visiting friends.

Mrs. Duncan Campbell, Linden Avenue, has been visiting in Vancouver as the guest of Mrs. G. G. McGeer, who entertained informally on Sunday evening at a supper musicale in honor of her guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Sandy of Fort St. John, B.C., arrived from the north this morning on a visit to the former's mother, Mrs. A. Sandy, Paddon Street, and to Mrs. M. Williams, May Street, mother of Mrs. R. Sandy.

Mrs. James Adam left this afternoon for her home in Vancouver after spending the last few days here with her son, Sub-Lt. Joe Adam, R.C.N.V.R., who has been on leave and who is returning to his duties in the east. En route to the Atlantic coast he will stop off to visit his sister, Miss Margaret Adam, in Toronto.

Mrs. Alan Mayhew arrived today from Halifax, N.S., and is staying with P.O. Mayhew's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Mayhew, Beach Drive. Mrs. Mayhew spent the summer in Charlottetown and went to Halifax a short time ago to join her husband before returning to the coast. She accompanied Mr. R. W. Mayhew, M.P., back from Ottawa.

The infant daughter of Pay-Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. H. A. McCandless, 720 Sea Terrace, received the names of Pamela Adele, at a christening ceremony Sunday afternoon, performed by Rev. R. C. S. Devenish at St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church. Acting as godmothers for the child were Mrs. C. W. Wray, and Mrs. M. Fawcett, while Lieut. Jack McCandless was godfather.

Mr. Robert Wilson of Vancouver who is expected in Victoria shortly to attend officers' training school at Gordon Head, was guest of honor at a party held at the home of Miss Phyllis Nemetz, Angus Drive. Mr. Wilson, who is master of ceremonies at the Homecoming Potlatch at University of B.C. and UBC Radio Society announcer, received an engraved cigarette case from the Radio Society members. Don MacMillan made the presentation. Misses Graeme Thompson, Elsha Faustrop and Elizabeth McLeod assisted the hostess.

Honoring Miss Stella Manson, who, after being for over two years on the clerical staff of Mount Bros. at Ganges, is leaving for Nanaimo, Miss Muriel Holme was hostess at a Halloween and surprise party, held at Ganges Inn. The room was suitably decorated with the usual Halloween symbols and the guests were received in the dimly lighted room by a ghost, who welcomed them to the revels. On behalf of those present, Miss Manson was presented by Miss Holmes with a fountain pen and pencil set, for which Miss Manson returned thanks in a graceful little speech. All the guests were in masquerade costumes, the prize for the best lady going to Miss Stella Manson and that for best man to Mr. J. D. Reid.

Zeta Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, held a "preferential tea" at the Empress Hotel Sunday afternoon in honor of the "rushes" who will be initiated as new members at the initiation banquet, tonight, at the Empress Hotel. Names of rushes who have been offered bids and have accepted are as follows: Mrs. L. Wardman and Misses Janet Wilson, Gladys Robertson, Catherine Cameron, Margaret George, Helen Robinson, Mary Ann Charlebois and Evelyn Hamilton. Others present at the tea included: Mesdames T. Hammond, F. Rough, A. Ward, E. Finch, B. Dawson, M. Knight, R. Rodger, W. Elliott, V. Waller, J. Goggin, F. Law, J. Charlebois, J. Wilson, and Mrs. D. Wiggins, a sorority sister from London, Ontario, who is now stationed in Victoria with the "Wrens" as a nursing sister. Following the tea the members and guests enjoyed the photographic display in the hotel library.

Miss Betty Lansdell was hostess recently to the members of the Chiselers' Bridge Club at her home on Graham Street. Dainty refreshments were served and prizes were won by Mrs. Robert Bullen and Mrs. Kenneth Scott. Members present were: Mrs. Cyril Robbins, Mrs. Reuben Cartwright, Mrs. Harry Williams, Mrs. Robert Bullen, Mrs. Kenneth Scott, Mrs. Robert Stewart and Miss Betty Lansdell. The guest of the evening was Mrs. P. Lansdell. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. R. Stewart, Obed Avenue.

At the home of Mrs. L. Thompson, 1134 Yates Street, a successful Halloween social was held Friday by Willing Workes, the money raised going towards the sending of cigarettes to Canadian military hospital overseas. Halloween motifs and decorations were carried out in the rooms, and the supper table was centred with a silver bowl of chrysanthemums. Each guest received favors. The hostess served tea and arranged bingo games. Those present were: Mesdames A. Bird, M. Brown, E. Simpson, D. Stravik, C. Brown, T. Simmons, E. Lerik, M. Morry, M. Groat and Miss D. Guelpha.

Miss Kay McKenzie, whose marriage to Mr. John D. Kissinger will take place shortly, was honored at a miscellaneous shower given Sunday evening at the home of Mrs. Ben Webb, 1136 Balmoral Road. A corsage bouquet of rosebuds was presented to the bride-to-be, together with many gifts which were concealed in a hope chest prettily decorated. Bronze chrysanthemums, and marigolds were arranged throughout the rooms, and later a buffet supper was served by the hostess. The guests were: Mesdames J. D. Kissinger, Frances Bantley, P. Conroy, James Grant, L. Creighton, J. O'Connell, R. Caldwell, William Clarke, Roy Waters, J. Hutchinson, D. Kissinger, Arthur McKibben, L. Kissinger, M. Sorensen, C. Bell, J. Junior League Plans Pantomime To Aid Solarium

Miss Dorothy Newman, convenor for the Solarium Junior santhemum show of the Victoria and District Chrysanthemum Society which will be held both in the afternoon and evening Thursday, Friday and Saturday this week, reported that plans were well under way and quite a number of tickets were already sold. It is expected to be a great success this year, with the showing of many different and new varieties of chrysanthemums. Tickets may be purchased from either members of the Solarium Junior League or the Victoria and District Chrysanthemum Society and also from local florist shops.

The president, Mrs. P. H. Brown, introduced two new members to the club, Miss Rylie Prentice and Mrs. Margaret Miller.

The Solarium gives help to crippled children and sadly needs more money to keep it going. With that object in view, the Solarium Junior League is sponsoring the Christmas pantomime "Cinderella" to be given at the Royal Victoria Theatre on Dec. 18 and 19 and with the kind assistance of the public, hopes to swell their funds with a good big Christmas box.

Nothing has been spared to make this one of the best and biggest pantomimes that Victoria has ever seen. With some of the best singers, dancers, actors and actresses, all under expert business management, the result cannot fail to be an evening's entertainment that will give pleasure to both kiddies and grown-ups.

The actual production of the pantomime will be in the hands of Mr. Reginald Hincks, who has once more consented to give his services for charitable purposes. It will be remembered that during the last war Mr. Hincks produced several similar shows: "Puss-in-Boots," "Babes in the Wood," "Robinson Crusoe," "Shoulder Arms," "Mother Goose," "The House That Jack Built," to mention only a few of them. Many people also remember the "Playhouse" shows and the work that was done there for the Red Cross. He again appeals to all those who gave such magnificent help in making the old show a success to give all the help they can for an equally good cause.

The amount of $250 was given to the Queen Alexandra Solarium for the maintenance of a cot. The Solarium Junior League maintains two cots a year but decided this year to maintain three cots.

The Thetis Club of Vancouver has been accepted by the Solarium Junior League, and hereafter will be known as the Thetis Chapter of the Solarium Junior League.

"ME QUIT?" NOT WHILE OUR BOYS ARE FIGHTING"

"I'm making $35 dollars a week and I feed a hungry family. (Excuse me—I was making $35 before the last batch of taxes hit me. I still have all the family.)"

"So why am I buying Victory Bonds today? Well you see, a couple of boys I knew stayed on the beach at Dieppe. It's not a nice thought to go to bed with."

"Our boys are going in there again. And when they smack straight into those Huns—they're going to have the best equipment my money can help to buy. That's the least I can do—and the best way to do it is through my country's Victory Bonds."

"I'm not asking for any medals for buying these bonds. After all, I'll be laying up for myself the best of all investments—VICTORY BONDS are backed by all the resources of the Dominion of Canada; they yield a fair rate of interest; I can borrow against them; and they are readily saleable when I need the cash."

"So that's the way I feel about it. I'm going to keep right on paying my way in this man's war—and I'm not going to quit while our lads are in there pitching."

HOW TO BUY—Give your order to the Victory Loan salesman who calls on you. Or place it in the hands of any branch of any bank, or give it to any trust company. Or send it to your local Victory Loan Headquarters! Or you can authorize your employer to start a regular payroll-savings plan for you. BRITISH COLUMBIA TELEPHONE COMPANY

Fake Phone Calls
OTTAWA (CP) — R.C.A.F. headquarters has branded as "particularly contemptible form of fifth-column work" the action of anonymous persons in telephoning parents and wives of men on active service overseas to say their relatives have become casualties.

"The calls are always anonymous, the informant invariably hanging up after delivering the message," the statement said.

"The R.C.A.F. never provides news of casualties to next-of-kin by telephone. The procedure is to furnish notification by telegraph.

Any person receiving a telephone message giving notification of a casualty is requested to call the telephone operator at once in an effort to trace the number and origin of the call."

Dedicate Mission

Before a large congregation the Bishop of Columbia, assisted by the rector, Rev. Frederic Pike, dedicated the Mission Church of St. George, Cadboro Bay, Sunday.

In 1934 a Sunday school was started and held in the Lingerfield Tearoom under the direction of Miss Daphne and Miss Minnie Scholefield. From this small beginning the Mission Church of St. George is the outcome, and will serve the religious and social needs of the district. The building is of frame construction and is finished with ten-test wallboard in a pleasing manner. It has a fine auditorium and the sanctuary can be shut off by folding doors; there is also a rector's vestry room and well equipped kitchen and washrooms.

The building was erected at a cost of $5,000, of which only $600 remains to be paid. This has been accomplished through the generosity of friends and the hard work of the Ladies' Guild of St. George.

The bishop, in his address, congratulated the people of Cadboro Bay on acquiring such a fine building; he stressed the need of the spirit of worship and unity in parochial and family life. He then proceeded to dedicate a new oak lectern and credence table in memory of Peter Derek Hincks, an oak sanctuary chair and LATEST DEVELOPMENTS in the status of Dave MacKay, former Chicago Black Hawks defenceman and this year's manager of the Nanaimo Clippers in the new Island Hockey League, are hard to figure. Clippers received a rude shock Saturday night when they were notified two hours before their scheduled first game with Victoria V.M.D. that MacKay was under suspension and would be unable to take the ice.

Now it comes out that MacKay has been suspended by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association for failure to report this season to the Black Hawks. That's the part we cannot understand. Last season MacKay was reinstated to amateur ranks and sparked the Nanaimo club to the western Canada intermediate championship. Being an amateur, how come the Chicago club has anything to say about his hockey future? Immediately he was whitewashed back to simon pure ranks, one would naturally assume he had severed all connections with Chicago.

There seems to be more to the matter than has come to the surface. One cannot forget the extreme shortage of hockey material being faced by N.H.L. outfits, and this latest move looks like Chicago might be putting on the pressure in an attempt to force MacKay to rejoin the club. We remember the difficulties the big defence star experienced last season before securing his reinstatement, especially the length of time it took to get him eligible to again play amateur hockey.

From talks we had with Dave this fall, during the organization of the island circuit, we feel confident he will remain at Nanaimo, regardless of the outcome of the present action. MacKay likes his job with the Nanaimo-Duncan Utilities Ltd. and figures the future is much brighter than if he followed a professional hockey career. MacKay told us weeks ago that Paul Thompson, manager of the Chicago club, had made every effort to get him to go east and join the Hawks in their training camp but he turned down all offers. Thompson, who spends the off-season in Vancouver, worked on MacKay for several months in his efforts to make him change his mind. Should the Clippers lose the playing services of MacKay it will mean a distinct blow to the club's chances. And the league will lose a big drawing card, as the fans like to watch the big fellow in action. He's a real tough hockey player but a perfect gentleman off the ice.

Speaking about hockey players, a couple of chaps by the names of Pete Leswick and Connie King are wondering just when they will be able to do their stuff for the V.M.D. Professionals last season, they are anxiously awaiting word of their reinstatement from the powers that be. Their forms were sent away weeks ago, but still no action. V.M.D. officials got desperate last weekend and, in an effort to speed matters, sent a personal wire to Frank Calder, N.H.L. president and boss of the pro hockeyists, but received this curt note from Calder's office: "Calder out of town until Monday." So the boys are just biting their nails and hoping some action will be taken before the shipyarders tangle with the Army Friday night.

Hockey After War

Britons Will Raid

By CHARLES EDWARDS
TORONTO (CP)—Need for postwar planning was urged upon the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association at a meeting of the Manitoba branch by the veteran sports official, Abbie Coe of Winnipeg, who said some thought should be given "to what will happen when the British Ice Hockey Association starts a hunt for talent."

Maurice (Winnipeg Free Press) Smith, who was connected with sport in England and Scotland for several years before the war and who knows whereof he speaks, took up the cudgel: "The hockey interests in England and Scotland... have thousands of dollars invested in rinks and we don't think that after the war they'll use them just for dog shows... with 7,000,000 people to draw on, the London promoters, if the C.A.H.A. objects to their raiding, can offer salaries just as good, if not better than many players in the National

20 Minor Ball Stars Drafted

CHICAGO (AP)—Twenty players from the minor leagues were selected by the major league club owners at baseball's annual draft meeting Monday in the offices of Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball.

Among the best known, the Philadelphia Athletics selected Eddie Mayo, a third baseman from Los Angeles, with a .310 batting average for the past season, and John Welaj, outfielder from Buffalo, N.Y., who batted .311.

Cleveland took Jack Salveson, Oakland, Calif., pitcher, with a record of 24 victories and 12 defeats, and the Pittsburgh Pirates got Walla Hebert, also a pitcher, from San Diego, Calif. Hebert won 22 and lost 15.

The Chicago White Sox selected William Swift, a St. Paul pitcher, and Ralph Hodgins, San Francisco outfielder, who batted .321 this past season.

RACE CALLED OFF
NEW YORK (AP)—The $10,000 two-year-old sweepstakes, scheduled for the "Victory Week" of racing starting at Belmont Park Thursday, was called off Monday when John March of Chicago notified the sponsors that his Occupation wouldn't be able to start.

One of the conditions of the race was that both Mrs. John D. Hertz's Count Fleet and Occupation be entered. March won that Occupation came out of the Pimlico Futurity last Saturday in bad shape and that he intended to retire him for the season. Count Fleet beat Occupation by six lengths in the Futurity.

Lawn Bowling Club Elects Officers

Canadian Pacific Ladies' Lawn Bowling Club held a banquet and presentation of prizes in Terry's Rose Room Thursday, also the annual meeting, when Mrs. L. Clarke was elected president for the coming year. Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. McMurray were named honorary president and vice-president; Mrs. W. Peden, vice-president; Mrs. C. Edwards, secretary-treasurer; executive committee: Mrs. V. Shepherd, Mrs. W. Wilson, Mrs. C. Wood, Mrs. M. Stewart, Mrs. L. Barr, Mrs. E. McLeod. Delegates to Greater Victoria Ladies' Lawn Bowling Association: Mrs. W. Wilson, Mrs. V. Shepherd, Mrs. L. Clarke, Mrs. W. Peden, Mrs. C. Edwards; umpire, Mrs. B. Bryant. The secretary-treasurer's report was read and showed $98 was raised for "Save the Babies Fund for Britain." The retiring president, Mrs. E. McLeod, thanked the committee. The evening was spent playing bridge and prizes were won by Mrs. L. Barr, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Clarke.

Rickey Joins Brooklyn

Hockey Veterans Get New Lease

TORONTO (CP)—Enlistment of so many of the younger hockey players in Canada's armed forces is giving the old-timers an extra year or two, maybe more, on the steel blades. Dozens of puck veterans, fellows who know all the hockey answers after years in professional company and who are anxious to remain in the sport as long as their creaking joints will let them, are winning team positions which ordinarily would go to vigorous youngsters.

It will be interesting to watch the successes and disappointments of the old-timers matching the wisdom gained in the toughest hockey company in the world against the speed and condition of their younger rivals.

Many veterans of the minor professional leagues are with semi-pro teams in Seattle where shipyards, airplane factories and other war industries are forming teams. Player candidates there include another group averaging 12 years' experience in moneyed ranks, including Johnny Houbregs, Dave Gilhooley, Dave Downie, Frank Daley, Hal Tabor, Les Whittles, Millard Wakeford and Cam Proudlock.

None of these lads attracted major league managers sufficiently to hold National League berths although several were given brief trials.

Lust Continues To Get Support

MONTREAL (CP)—Al Lust and Dave Castilloux, who meet here for the Canadian welterweight title Thursday night, went through brisk workouts in the same gym here Monday, while the tide of opinion, hitherto overwhelmingly in favor of Castilloux as far as Montreal was concerned, began to show signs of wavering.

Lust went through a heavy workout during the afternoon and Castilloux followed him at the Square Athletic Club.

Latest to concede Lust a good chance of taking Castilloux is Moe Foreman, manager of young Harry Hurst of Montreal. Foreman was impressed by the Calgary boy's punching power and rugged physique and thought Castilloux wasn't showing up particularly well in his workouts.

Johnny Greco, former stablemate of Castilloux who would like a crack at his lightweight crown, also thinks Lust may come through, and has been giving him pointers on Castilloux's style.

Greco is going to appear on the same Victory Loan card Thursday night, matched with Aubrey Carew in an eight-round semifinal. Greco is expected to join the R.C.A.F. soon.

Perfect Bowling Score

WINNIPEG (CP)—Cpl. B. F. Turner of Fort William, a member of the bowling team from No. 3 wireless school of the R.C.A.F. here, Monday entered the bowlers' hall of fame when he trundled a perfect score of 450 during the school's stipelin league play. It was the first perfect game reported in Winnipeg fivepin bowling circles this season. Tony Chiarot rolled a perfect score during the Winnipeg Fivepin Bowling Association's annual tournament last spring. Turner's three-game score was 741, including games of 131, 160 and his perfect 450 score.

On Major Hockey Front

Boston Plays Hawks

National Hockey League fans will turn their eyes toward Chicago Thursday night to see how the Black Hawks shape up against the Boston Bruins as the hockey season opens in the Illinois capital. The other five teams already have made their debut with Toronto Maple Leafs, Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens in a three-day tie at the top of the standings.

The Leafs' opening saw the New York Rangers bow out to the tune of 7 to 2, Saturday night. Another Saturday game saw the Canadiens out-scoring the Bruins 3 to 2, while Sunday the Bruins were defeated by the Red Wings, 3 to 0.

Following the week-end activities, the clubs have a four-day break and resume the struggle Thursday when Bruins will face off against Black Hawks and Rangers will make their second effort against Detroit. Coach Paul Thompson has bolstered his war-hit team with veterans from minor professional leagues. In the scoring area he has three complete forward lines, while in the backfield he has four defencemen and goalie Bert Gardner, recently acquired from Montreal Canadiens.

Thompson's forwards include Red Hamill, Bill Thoms, Max Bentley, Mush March, Doug Bentley, Cully Dahlstrom, Phil Hergesheimer and George Allan. His defencemen are Joe Matte, Red Mitchell, and Aud Tuten and Leo Carbol, all veterans from the disbanded American Association.

The Bruins face a tough job to turn back the Hawks, although the Boston team is determined to win at least once before their road tour ends. They play in Toronto Thursday, Nov. 12, before starting their home season against Rangers, Nov. 14.

Wednesday night will see the start and Saturday night the finish of the Victoria Table Tennis Association club champions for this year. The tourney will be featured by some of the smartest players to compete in the city and should be one of the most successful held here.

First-round matches will be run off Wednesday evening and players will be eliminated until the cream of the crop plays in the finals.

All three services will be represented in this year's matches. Art Barron, classy Vancouver player, will represent the R.C.A.F. in the singles and will team with Victoria's Ray Dawson in the doubles. Cpl. Eric Walker will represent the R.A.F., who will team with S. Sgt. Vic Tully in the doubles. P.O. Vic Ruocco, smart defensive player, will also play for the R.A.F.

Vic Tully will again this year team with Barbara MacKay in the mixed doubles in an effort to regain the title lost last year to Bill Cotton and Ruth Payne.

Wilmot Brown-Cave will be another leading contender, chubby Ray Dawson will flash his offensively plucky and thought Castilloux wasn't showing up particularly well in his workouts.

Johnny Greco, former stablemate of Castilloux who would like a crack at his lightweight crown, also thinks Lust may come through, and has been giving him pointers on Castilloux's style.

Greco is going to appear on the same Victory Loan card Thursday night, matched with Aubrey Carew in an eight-round semifinal. Greco is expected to join the R.C.A.F. soon.

Aussie Bookmaker Works Despite Japs

SYDNEY (AP)—The Germans and Italians couldn't stop this Australian, army sergeant from "making book" on the Melbourne Cup, Australia's biggest horse race, in 1940 and 1941, and the Japs aren't going to stop him in 1942.

In a small clearing of the Owen Stanley Ranges in New Guinea there is a big native house which now carries the sergeant's advertisement: "Melbourne Cup. Quotations. Best Odds. No Credit."

The house is his betting headquarters when off duty.

The sergeant says business is much better than in 1940, when he was in Egypt, or in 1941 in Syria.

Fred Thurier Tops Minor Ice Scorers

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Fred Thurier of Buffalo Bisons got off to a fast start in the new American Hockey League season, scoring five goals and seven assists in four games, and the 12 points gained thereby put him at the top of the circuit's individual scoring list.

Thurier's teammate, Fred Hunt, held second place with nine points and two members of Cleveland Barons, Les Cunningham and Norm Locking, were tied for third place, a point behind Hunt.

Roger (Broadway) Jenkins has spent 14 minutes in the penalty box during the three games Hershey Bears, from whom he draws his pay, have played and that made him the league's leading rules breaker.

Thursdays night at 7 a meeting will be held at the Sussex Squash Courts was the object of organizing a squash racquets league. Following are asked to have representatives present: R.A.F., H.M.C.S. Royal Roads, Army and Yarrow.

In an intercity match played over the week-end a visiting Seattle team scored a walkover victory over Yarrow, 10 to 0. The two Pelley brothers, Lieut. Todd, Lieut. Marshall and Vining represented Seattle, while Van Horne, Dunbar, Yardley, Ewing and Sanderson played for Yarrow.

Steal Street Cars

LONDON (CP)—The Germans are attempting to overcome shortages of street railway equipment in Nazi territories by raiding streetcar lines in Netherlands cities for rolling stock. It was learned Monday.

The Danzig newspaper, Vorposten, reported that six streetcars taken from the Hague have arrived in Nazi Danzig.

WHIPS FORMER CHAMP

BALTIMORE (AP)—Lou Transparenti of Baltimore won a unanimous 10-round decision over Joey Archibald, former featherweight champion from Providence, R.I., Monday night, by building up a big early lead, then stopping an Archibald rally with a knockdown.

Transparenti floored Archibald in the ninth for no count after holding command throughout. Transparenti weighed 123 and Archibald 128½.

Bobby Bauer to Play at Calgary

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary R.C.A.F. team of the Alberta Services Senior Hockey League received a boost Monday when Bobby Bauer, formerly of the famous Boston Bruins Kraut line of Schmidt, Bauer and Dumart, was posted to No. 4 training command headquarters as a clerk sten.

The Krauts helped Ottawa Flyers win the Allan Cup last spring.

They played their final game with the Boston Bruins on Feb. 11, 1941, and then enlisted with the R.C.A.F.

The air force team held its first workout at the arena Sunday when Coach Tiny Thompson greeted 20 players. Among them were Don Emery, who played pro hockey with Spokane of the Coast League; Alex Fringle, formerly of Lethbridge Maple Leafs; Bobby Koch, formerly of Calgary Stampers and last winter with Baltimore Orioles; and Krizan, a husky defenceman who started his hockey career at Canmore and later performed with Turner Valley Oilers.

Sudden-Death Grid Playoff

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Winnipeg Rugby Football club announced Sunday night that the Canadian Rugby Union has given approval of a sudden-death game here Saturday between a Winnipeg Blue Bombers service team and the Regina Navy to decide the western senior football championship.

The Winnipeg team will be chosen from the Winnipeg Rugby Football club's "house league," the three senior teams that formed the city league. The teams are the Bombers, R.C.A.F. Flyers and the University of Manitoba.

FLYERS BEAT BOMBERS

WINNIPEG (CP)—LAC. Johnny Lake, former backfield star of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, Dominion football champions, led R.C.A.F. Flyers to a four-point lead in the two-game total-point city senior football championship Saturday.

Lake scored 13 points as the airmen defeated the Bombers 18 to 14 in the opening game. Second game

Mother's 'Don'ts' to Children Do Register in Time

Dear Miss Dix: Mothers are always being told not to nag their children, yet in heaven's name how are they to teach them right from wrong, or even the elements of good manners, unless they harp perpetually on the same string? To tell a child a thing once is as futile as pouring water on a duck's back. It slides right off without leaving the slightest mark. But if you tell Sonny hundreds of times to hang up his cap, instead of throwing it on the floor, maybe some day he will put it on the rack of his own volition.

If you tell Mamie every morning, from the time she can hold a pusher in her pudgy fist until she goes off to boarding school, not to leave her spoon in her cup, and not to use a fork as if it were a spade, she may not disgrace you with her table manners. But it is line upon line, and precept upon precept, that finally turns children into people who are a credit to their families. But mother does it by nagging.

MRS. R. K.

Answer: I am afraid that is true, and that in order to turn a rough diamond into a polished gem that will shine in society, every child has to endure a certain amount of nagging from mother. And if it is a pain in the neck to the child, it is certainly a headache to mother.

Mother's efforts to turn little Johnny and little Susie from savages into civilized human beings by continually telling them over and over again to do, or not do, certain things is such a worrisome job and seems to produce so little result, that many women in despair just throw up their hands and quit. So far as they can see, all their admonitions and training in the ways of polite society have not made a single dent in the child's consciousness.

Johnny still keeps his cap on when speaking to a lady. He still hangs his clothes up on the floor. He still whoops like an Indian and eats like a pig. And mother feels that she had better keep her breath to cool her porridge.

But let mother not be discouraged. In spite of all of Johnny's determination to the contrary, mother's nagging has registered somewhere in his mind, and long after mother has worn herself out trying to teach him good manners and lies a-molding in her grave, all the Emily Post that she has hammered into him will rise to the surface, and he will be noted for his poise and elegance of demeanor.

STRIVE FOR HAPPY MEDIUM

But in nagging children, as in all else, there is a happy medium, and wise is the mother who uses discretion and picks her time and place for correcting her children. Especially should she be careful about not doing it too often or too much, for a "don't" is impressive according to its variety. Which reminds me of a conversation I once heard between two small children.

One of them said: "Shall we ask mother if we can do this?" "Oh, no," replied the more astute of the two. "Let's do it and then tell her about it. She always says 'don't' if we ask her about anything, but after we have done it she doesn't care."

WAR MAY CHANGE VIEWPOINT

Dear Miss Dix: I am a young man of 21 year of age, very much in love with a girl five years my senior. I am certain this love is true. No mere fascination. And she I am positive cares as much for me as I do for her. But, Miss Dix, how will I feel towards her in later life? Will the difference in our ages be compensated by our love for each other? Or will it cause discontent and unpleasantness?

WESTON.

Answer: Page a soothsayer who is the seventh son of a seventh son and was born in a caul. No ordinary mortal can prophesy how a boy who marries at 21 will feel towards his wife in later life. No couple who get married, for that matter, know how long their love is going to last. They can only hope for the best and keep their fingers crossed for luck.

Certainly a boy of 21 who marries a girl five years older than he is takes an added risk, because at that age a girl isn't just five years older than he is. She is 10 or 15 years older. At 26 she is a mature woman, while he is still an undeveloped boy. And whether she will look as good to him when he is 26 as she does to his youthful fancy now, is a question. You are about to be called to the army. You will necessarily be separated from this girl for some time. During your absence you will grow up from boyhood to manhood. You will go through many experiences, see many things that will change your whole point of view. So my earnest advice to you is not to marry this girl before you go. Wait until after the war is over. Then, if you are still in love with her, you may be very sure that your affection for her will endure and that you will have a good chance at a happy marriage.

Kate Douglas Smith Taught San Francisco Kindergarten

An 18-year-old girl was on her way to California. Most of her life she had lived in Maine, but lately she had been attending a boarding school in Massachusetts. Now she was on her way to the Pacific coast to join her mother and stepfather, who had made the long journey ahead of her.

Miss Smith (later Kate Douglas Wiggin) became a kindergarten teacher.

In those days young women seldom traveled alone, and Kate Douglas Smith was chaperoned on this trip. Her companion was an elderly naval officer who had retired from the navy; he was now on his way to a Nevada ranch. Leaving the train at a Nevada station, he bade Kate farewell.

When Kate reached San Francisco she found herself with two trunks filled with the officer's clothing! Meanwhile her friend had gone to his ranch with trunks containing dresses!

The stepfather met the train, and started the baggage on the way to an exchange, so the trunks would have their rightful owners. Then he escorted Kate south to Santa Barbara. Sad to say, he died a few years later; he had been kind to his stepdaughters, Kate and her younger sister.

Now came a great need to earn money. The family was in debt. Kate obtained work playing the organ at a church, with a salary of $15 per month. She knew a little about the piano, but until then had been a stranger to the

Boot Case Goes to Jury

Besmirched Reputations
Regretted By Trial Judge

Regret that the reputations of certain civil servants had been "besmirched" by insinuations to which they could not reply was voiced by Mr. Justice Sidney Smith in Assize Court today as he charged the jury in the conspiracy to defraud case against L. J. Simmons, former provincial police quartermaster, and J. A. Walsh, managing director of Wm. Cathcart Co. Ltd.

The charge opened at 10.30 and was completed at 1.05. The jury was recalled once for further instructions.

"We are not here today holding an inquiry into any government department," Mr. Justice Smith remarked. "We are here to try the two accused."

He noted the Crown alleged one was an unfaithful steward and the other a dishonest man. "There may be others. Their time will come," he said, adding consideration of other individuals was no concern of the jury today.

TRIBUTE TO SERVICE

Mr. Justice Smith paid tribute to the general integrity of civil servants, federal, provincial and municipal, then voiced his regret "so many insinuations besmirching their reputations" had been heard at the trial.

He explained reasonable doubt and weighing of evidence before dealing specifically with the charge of conspiracy and the methods by which it was proved.

If the jury was satisfied there was a conspiracy between the two, the actions of one could be taken as evidence against the other, he said.

Reviewing the evidence, Mr. Justice Smith outlined the origin of the inquiry over high police costs, described the purchasing system in police stores, as indicated by the evidence, and noted the system depended on the integrity of one civil servant.

He reviewed evidence of John Harvey, deputy comptroller general for B.C., regarding omissions from the stock book, improper entries and shrinkage in stock on hand from the end of one year to the beginning of the next.

Mr. Justice Smith went into interviews between Mr. Harvey and the two accused, noting the declaration by Walsh regarding delivery of goods had been declared an official falsehood by the Crown.

RELIABLE WITNESS

He discussed cheque deals and refunds which Miss Audrey Harness said had led to transfer of cash from Walsh to Simmons and said "I concluded I had never listened to a more reliable witness" than Miss Harness.

The defence, the presiding judge said, as far as Simmons was concerned, was an attack on the system. The Crown had stated no pressure had been brought to bear on Simmons by senior officers, that if there were irregularities they were Simmons' responsibility and that Simmons had not complained against the system until the present action had been started.

Commenting on P. J. Sinnott's statement "The little man has been placed in the dock," Mr. Justice Smith noted Simmons was the N.C.O. in charge of the district. Shortages caused by irregular procedure by inspectors might be answered through evidence on acquisition of equipment without requisition or receipt he said, reading the cross-examination dealing with that matter.

He cautioned the jury not to accept Sinnott's invitation to speculate on what other witnesses might have said had they been called, and noted the defence could have called witnesses if it wished.

Reviewing Joseph McKenna's submissions on behalf of Walsh, he took decided issue with counsel's statement "In transactions with the government a double standard prevails."

"In law," Mr. Justice Smith said, "that is not true."

If Walsh had failed heir to a system, as suggested by the defence, there was no evidence to show his predecessor had carried on any irregularities, Mr. Justice Smith said.

Chairman Thanks
War Loan Workers

R. W. Hiberson, chairman of the Victoria unit of the National War Finance Committee issued a statement today following receipt of figures showing that the unit had reached its quota of $8,530,000.

"On behalf of the more than 1,000 workers in this unit who have contributed their energies to the Third Victory Loan, I would like to thank the people of Victoria for the considerable way in which our efforts on behalf of the government have been received. The extent of your response is indicated by our reaching the quota given us in record time. Large and small business firms and citizens in every walk of life have participated in the loan in proportion to their means."

"We, the workers, are not, however, satisfied just to do the minimum asked of us and are determined to go on with the job and endeavor to reach the $10,000,000 mark. With the continued support of all we can make this new goal. If anyone has not been contacted by our organization please call Beacon 3191, or if you have already bought a bond and believe you can add somewhat to your purchases, we would appreciate hearing from you."

Impressive Funeral for Sgt. Petterson

Funeral procession passing at Quadra and Pembroke.

Rev. George Biddle conducted funeral service Monday at Sands Mortuary for Sgt. James H. Petterson of the Victoria City Police.

Attending were representatives of the police forces of Victoria and Oak Bay, provost corps of the armed services, women's military police, B.C. Police, and C.P.R.

Police. Also at the service were Mayor Andrew McGavin, and Aldermen D. D. McTavish, W. H. Davies, Archie Willis, and B. J. Gadsden.

Fifty police officers under Inspector Walter Caldwell, and several members of the Victoria Fire Department, with Fire Chief A. Munroe, preceded the flag-draped casket, and Chief Constable J. A. McLellan led the procession on Quadra to Queens.

The pallbearers were: Sgt. Roy Woolsey, Sgt. John Blackstock, and Constables Stanley Holmes, Thomas Stevenson, Samuel McKenzie and A. Munroe, all members of the Victoria force. Interment was at Royal Oak.

Promoted

SQDN. LDR. E. V. FINLAND, M.L.A. for Esquimalt, who has been promoted from the rank of flight lieutenant. A pilot in the Royal Flying Corps in the first Great War, Sqn. Ldr. Finland re-enlisted in the R.C.A.F. on the outbreak of war in 1939. He is now stationed with headquarters at Calgary.

While they did not have the latest official figures from across Canada, workers at headquarters believed that Victoria had set the pace and was the first metropolitan centre to reach its quota. With this encouragement the 1,500 workers throughout the city are now striving for an objective of $10,000,000 and "express" every hope of reaching it.

Subscriptions recorded to noon stood at:

	Objective	Subscribed
Victoria	18,530,000	18,530,000
Oak Bay	1,000,000	871,769
Esquimalt	450,000	362,100

Cowichan-Duncan	750,000	548,800
Courtenay-Comox	300,000	228,300

While the Dominion quota was originally set at $750,000,000, the real objective is a great deal more.

TOWN TOPICS

A meeting in the interest of the Mission to Lepers will be held Thursday at 3 at 1012 Chamberlain Street. Mr. R. MacDonald will speak.

Miller & Patterson Ltd., 1032 Yates Street, reported to police at 8.45 this morning that 20 books of gold leaf were stolen when those premises were entered overnight.

Thomas Skuratow, a soldier, was fined a total of $25 or seven days and $25.65 damages, or an additional seven days, when convicted in police court today on separate charges of causing willful damage and assault, Saturday night.

James "Crown, 1221 Montrose Street, was treated at Jubilee Hospital at 10 Monday night for an injured hand, sustained when working on a fallen telephone pole in the 500 block, Beach Drive. The wind rolled the pole on his hand.

The Hard-of-Hearing Club will not hold a general meeting on Wednesday evening due to the hall being redecorated. The Red Cross group will meet as usual on Wednesday afternoon at the clubrooms and the bridge club will meet the same evening.

Eight motorists were each fined $2.00 in police court today on parking charges. One was fined the same amount for unnecessarily sounding his horn. One was fined $15 for speeding while another paid $5 for not stopping at a red light. A pedestrian was fined $1 for walking against a red light.

John McFadyen and Eugene Mitchell were each fined $10 with the option of serving three days and each assessed $39.25 damages in court today, after pleading guilty. Monday, to a charge of smashing the windows of the Olympia Oyster House, 1413 Broad Street, Saturday night.

The R.C.A.F. orchestra and the Victoria Girls' Drill Team will take part in the Red Cross entertainment to be staged at the Agricultural Hall, Saanichton, Wednesday evening. The airman will provide the music for the dancing which will start at 8.30 and the girls' team will perform their famous evolutions. Prior to the dance a bazaar will be held, opening at 6, with plants, home cooking and white elephant stalls and a rummage sale. Continuous supper will be served cafeteria style.

Two unidentified sailors were reported driving a Grey Line bus south on Quadra Street at 5.10 this morning. Police later found the bus, undamaged, at the corner of Pandora and Douglas Streets, but there was no trace of the sailors.

Victoria Sets Pace
For Dominion By
Topping Loan Quota

Victoria has passed its quota in the Third Victory Loan campaign, the figures at noon standing at $8,530,000 and still going up. The total for the Island was $12,232,400.

While they did not have the latest official figures from across Canada, workers at headquarters believed that Victoria had set the pace and was the first metropolitan centre to reach its quota. With this encouragement the 1,500 workers throughout the city are now striving for an objective of $10,000,000 and "express" every hope of reaching it.

Subscriptions recorded to noon stood at:

	Objective	Subscribed
Victoria	18,530,000	18,530,000
Oak Bay	1,000,000	871,769
Esquimalt	450,000	362,100
Saanich-Gulf Is.	825,000	627,500
Nanaimo	500,000	471,100
Alberni	340,000	408,500
Cowichan-Duncan	750,000	548,800
Courtenay-Comox	300,000	228,300

While the Dominion quota was originally set at $750,000,000, the real objective is a great deal more.

To Be Buried Tomorrow

The funeral service for George Richard Clare, a former member of the Victoria City Police who died Sunday, will be held Wednesday at 2 from McCall Bros' Funeral Home. Interment will be in the Colwood Burial Park.

B.C. Hospitals Seeking
Higher Rate for Indians

The Dominion government pays a higher rate for the hospitalization of Japanese than native-born Indians, 86 representatives at the 25th annual convention of the British Columbia Hospitals Associations were told at the opening session at the Empress Hotel today.

The three-day convention, which is attended by representatives and delegates from hospitals throughout the province, began with a registration this morning. President S. M. Cosler of Vancouver was in the chair.

Alderman John A. Worthington, representing Mayor Andrew McGavin, and Hon. George S. Pearson, provincial secretary and honorary president of the association, welcomed the delegates.

The recurring question of rates of pay to be made by the Indian department for hospitalization of Indian patients was referred to in the form of a resolution urging united action to the resolutions committee.

Ernest Mayon of Merritt said most hospitals, due to the demands of the Dominion and provincial government, A.R.P. services and the impossibility of making replacements of staff at former rates, had experienced an increase in operating costs.

Although Ottawa had recognized higher living costs by ordering a bonus, they did not recognize the increase in hospital costs and the Indian department officials had refused to set a new schedule of rates, the delegate said, suggesting all hospitals send written notice to Ottawa that after April 1, 1943, no Indian patients would be admitted except at regular rates.

Oliver Phillips, secretary of the association, said the Indian question was not a simple one, because many hospitals were established for Indians by churches and it was unlikely these hospitals would take a stand on the question of rates.

"I'm not sure Indians are getting as good care as other patients," he said. "In some hospitals conditions are deplorable." The resolution which called for concerted action of the association to get a rate consistent with that paid by other government departments was proposed by J. V. Fisher, second vice-president.

NEED MORE HOSPITALS

Mr. Pearson in his address of welcome to the convention, said that after the war a reorganization of hospitals would be necessary. He said there were too many hospitals in some areas while in northern B.C. there was a lack of hospital facilities.

He mentioned the lack of doctors and nurses in some areas and suggested that after the war the master hospital plan might be adopted for larger urban centres of B.C.

Mr. Pearson said his department would be glad to receive bert, 3125 Qu'Appelle Street; Leslie A. "Dick," at home, and Archie of Richmond, Calif.; one daughter, Ivy, at home; three grandchildren, and two brothers in England. The remains are at the S. J. Curry & Son Funeral Home, where the service will be held Thursday at 2. Rev. T. H. McAllister officiating. Interment at Royal Oak.

SMITH—Miss Kate Smith, 75, of Napier Street, Vancouver, died there Friday. Miss Smith was born in Ontario and moved with her family to Comox Valley, and later to Victoria, where she graduated as a nurse from the Royal Jubilee Hospital. She and her sister, the late Mrs. Mary Westwood, founded the Glen Hospital in Vancouver 22 years ago. She was matron there at the time of her death. Committal services will be held here Wednesday afternoon, the cortege leaving McCall Bros' Funeral Chapel at 4. Rev. O. L. Jull will conduct the service at Ross Bay. Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Fanny Westwood of Vancouver, Mrs. A. E. Allen of Victoria, and one brother, J. B. Smith of Comox.

recommendations from the association.

Percy Ward, inspector of hospitals for the B.C. government, in an analysis of the 1941 hospital reports, said hospitals in B.C. in 1941 numbered 77, an increase of one during the year. The bed capacity of these hospitals had decreased from 5,107 to 4,861.

He reported the assets of the government-aided hospitals was over $12,000,000 of which about $3,000,000 was a payable liability. Total expenditures increased $500,000 to $6,000,000 during 1942, he said.

Of hospital revenue, $1,000,000 came from the provincial government in statutory grants, he said, and the government paid more than $500,000 in special grants and for special services. Municipal aid to hospitals was $800,000, he said, while accounts collected or collectable from patients amounted to $3,482,210, an increase of 15.5 per cent.

The president in his report said hospitals during 1941 had experienced serious shortages of essential supplies, nursing staffs had been depleted and other hospital help difficult to obtain.

"With the continued growth of hospital insurance and hospital service plans in all parts of Canada, the desirability of some comprehensive health insurance which will protect not only selected groups, but every person in the community, is becoming more and more apparent," he said.

Safe Crackers Rob
B.C. Dye Works

Safe crackers who broke into the B.C. Dye Works, 1012 Yates Street, overnight, escaped with a few War Savings Certificates and five or six bills in Chinese money, according to a police report today.

The safe cracking was reported at 8 this morning. Detectives David Donaldson and Fearon Woodburn found that entrance was made through a skylight. The thieves dragged the safe from the main part of the store and into a small adjoining room, where they knocked off the dial.

Papers from the safe were strewn all over the floor and some clothing was stolen.

Ministers Hear Talk
On Divine Healing

Rev. George Biddle spoke to a luncheon meeting of the Greater Victoria Ministerial Association, Monday at the Y.V.C.A., on "Divine Healing," using as a basis the speech of the Archbishop of Canterbury to the British Medical Association.

Rev. Biddle said the next great medical discovery would be the scientific side of the spiritual in the healing of the mind, body and soul. He quoted some indelible local examples of spiritual healing.

Rev. Hugh A. McLeod presided at the meeting.

Mori's Speech Quoted at Inquiry On Black Dragon

VANCOUVER (CP)—Testimony that Etsuji Mori, naturalized Canadian who headed a Japanese liaison committee working with the British Columbia

Security Commission, once declared in a speech that Japan is "a country founded to carry to completion the gods'

wishes," today was before Judge

J. C. A. Cameron of Belleville,

Ont., who is investigating charges

by the Vancouver News-Herald that a branch of the Japanese

Black Dragon Society flourished

in British Columbia.

The evidence was given Monday by Rev. W. H. N. Norman, former missionary to Japan, who translated a speech allegedly made by Mori in December, 1939, under the auspices of the Canadian-Japanese Association. The speech appeared in the magazine

Sokoku (Fatherland), which Mr.

Norman described as "a very nationalistic Japanese magazine."

In the speech Mori was said to have declared that "the national policy of Japan" was "to follow the country, exalting one

(Imperial) line, to vov loyalty to the great monarch with the utmost sincerity." In this policy was "beauty that cannot be found in the hearts of any other people."

"Though, fortunately or unfortunately, we who reside in a foreign country, far from the Motherland, cannot bear arms on the battlefield, yet since we have our allotted place to display the Japanese spirit, we should feel that we are in no whit different from our heroes on the battlefield," the translation said elsewhere.

It urged Japanese residents outside Japan not to "become vainly excited," saying that

"since we live in a country at war, we are in a very complicated situation, and unless we are very careful, the living space which we have built up over 50 years of extremely painful struggle will be lost."

Mr. Norman said one of the sponsors of Sokoku was Mitsuru

Toyama, known by reputation in Japan as the head of the Black

Dragon Society, and reviewed some of the activities of that secret society in Japan.

Mr. Norman, who was attached to the consultative committee which assisted the Security Commission in evacuating Japanese from the B.C. coastal zone, said that last March, when the committee was formed, he heard

Mori described as a "ward boss" and head of a Jujitsu club.

TALKED WITH POLICE

He said he had told Assistant

Commissioner F. J. Mead of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police

that Mori was making collections for the Japanese Benevolent Society, but the police official informed him he already had a list.

Mr. Norman said Commissioner

Mead "had an attitude of trust toward Mori which I, at least, couldn't shake."

J. K. Smith, city food and sanitary inspector, testified he had submitted to the Security Commission a plan for removal of 10

Japanese families.

He made the submission, he explained, after Frank Koyama had given him a list of 10 families who wanted assistance in obtaining their removal to an area with which the witness was familiar.

Two weeks after informing the commission, Smith said he received an acknowledgment which said his offer was not accepted because he had not enclosed the names of the families.

Smith added he was positive he had enclosed the list of names in the presence of witnesses.

Shortly after, Smith said Koyama told him "not to bother any more because Mori already has the names on the list" and</

Engagement With Japs
'Hell of a Melee'

PEARL HARBOR (AP)—A 40-minute battle the night of Oct. 11-12, in which possibly nine Japanese warships were sunk, was vividly described here today by Captain Ernest Gregor Small of New Haven, Conn.

"It was a hell of a melee, completely surprising the enemy," said Captain Small. "We sank one heavy cruiser and believe we got two others and one light cruiser. We know we sank one destroyer and probably four others. Within the first four minutes, I saw our salvos going in like red box cars on a Jap heavy cruiser, plunging right into her and she sank. It was like seeing a prize-fighter getting socked on the chin, then shake and just drop cold."

"We caught them at a five-mile range and hit some ships before they could open fire. One had its guns trained for and aft."

"It was one of those things naval officers wait 20 years to see."

SPEEDING FOR GUADALCANAL

"We capped their T. They were coming at high speed toward Guadalcanal at a right angle to our course. The Jap ships turned in utter confusion, each ship taking its own course and trying to bring their action parallel and uncross the disastrous T."

"One destroyer came at us at high speed for a torpedo attack and was within 1,500 yards when our salvos obliterated it."

"I can best describe this night action for the layman as a fourth of July fireworks lasting 40 minutes."

utes and its conclusion like the dying set pieces burning out."

"The action was in spurts of from three to 10 minutes with both forces moving at top speed."

"Capping the T is a naval manoeuvre whereby a line of ships swings in front of an opposing line of vessels, thus enabling them to concentrate their broadside fire on the leading ship of the enemy line, which can bring to bear only its forward guns. By this manoeuvre the ships are able to cross the T and achieve superior fire power."

FIRED UNTIL DEAD

"I was especially gratified with my ship crew in action and their showing of courage and perfect reaction to training. One of the men was at a five-inch gun when hit by a shell fragment which cut open his stomach and cut part of his hand off. But he kept his gun pointers matched and fired four telling salvos, then just died. Another, a shell loader, was hit by a fragment but kept the shells coming for the guns until he dropped dead. Every ship has its characteristics and our cruiser's slogan is: 'There's a right way, a wrong way, and our way of doing things.'"

"We were on a mission to intercept an enemy movement toward Guadalcanal. In the early evening there was an interesting incident that we felt was a bad omen. In catapulting one of our planes for a search, Lieut. William J. Tate, 26, Baltimore, and Radioman C. W. Morgan were aboard. As the plane left the catapult we saw flames in its tail and it landed afire. Tate died eight times for the rubber boat and both he and Morgan were burned. We felt he was lost but he was rescued three days later."

The night battle was near Savo Island, just two months after the first Savo Island battle in which the Japanese sank the cruisers Quincy, Astoria and Vincennes. The Japanese had the advantage of surprise in their first battle but the tables were turned on them with a heavier loss than they inflicted on the American cruisers last August 8-9.

Peace Transport
To Absorb Planes
After Victory Won

MONTREAL (CP)—D. C. Coleman, chairman of the Canadian Pacific Air Lines and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, told the annual convention of Air Transport Association here today, that some use will be found for the thousands of airplanes which will still be pouring forth from factories after victory is won.

"If you are to win and to hold traffic," Mr. Coleman said, "you will have to be able to offer other advantages in addition to speed, because the post-war existence is going to be a hard one in which no man will have money to spend on useless luxuries. You will have to prepare to be judged as against other forms of transport on the basis of safety, cost, comfort and convenience."

"Everybody agrees that there will be a great deal more flying done than before the war," added Mr. Coleman, but he said "when those days of peace return, and flying as you hope and believe, will become a common means of transportation, from a competitive standpoint, you will no longer be able to rely on the alluring charm of novelty and your operations will no longer be conducted in an atmosphere of glamour. What becomes the usual and the ordinary ceased to be the romantic and glamorous."

Mr. Coleman paid tribute to Canada's aircraft manufacturing industry which, since the outbreak of war, had increased its employees 50 times. He suggested the contribution being made by the airplane manufacturers is helping to turn the balance of the war in favor of the United Nations.

While producers in Canada and the United States have produced amazing results, he said, it is still a fact that Britain is still well in the van in adapting modern methods of mass production to the building of high-class fighting machines.

NOTICE TO MARINERS

Mariners are advised that the unwatched light on Patey Rock, entrance to Saanich Inlet, B.C., is reported not burning. This light will be attended to as soon as possible.

405-Pound Halibut
Caught at Ketchikan

KETCHIKAN, Alaska (AP)—Fishing off a Ketchikan wharf for small cod, longshoreman Ory McDougall thought he'd snagged the bottom of the harbor, he said Monday, but when a borrowed dory helped bring his catch to the surface he found a halibut weighing 405 pounds.

It was believed to be the largest ever caught on a handline here. Because the halibut season is closed McDougall must eat his fish himself or give some to friends. Its market value is about $50.

The halibut was killed with an oar and hauled to a pier with a half-inch chain.

Britain Closing Out
Last Nonessentials

LONDON (CP)—Hugh Dalton, president of the Board of Trade, disclosed today that he is taking steps to stop all production which does not serve "a real war purpose."

"We have lots to go around, but it is not yet properly distributed," he said. "No doubt it will be adjusted in time."

He related the agricultural problem of Canada to conditions in and around Victoria.

"We as city people, have to get out and help solve the manpower problem in that field, or we are going to be very seriously affected," he said. He saw no justification in the position of the urban citizen who put in an eight-hour day and expected the farmer to work 16 hours to provide him with agricultural and dairy produce.

If citizens did not put in some time on the land, Victoria would be short of milk and butter, he said.

"If the people here want vegetables next summer, they'd better dig their victory gardens now," he added.

The general war outlook, Mr. Mayhew said, appeared better.

Local Shipyards to Stay
Busy, States R. W. Mayhew

Victoria shipyards will continue to be as busy as the supply of manpower and steel permits, R. W. Mayhew, M.P., said today on his return home from Ottawa.

"There is no question that our yards will be as busy as they can be. Orders, of course, will depend on manpower and steel," he said.

Steel production was being stepped up throughout Canada and the United States, he said. But, the Victoria member reported, there is no reason to hope the government will make any immediate use of B.C. iron ore with a steel plant in this province.

"They will only take that step when necessity forces them to," Mr. Mayhew said. Ottawa, he said, is now fully geared to the war effort, although, in his opinion, it will not reach its maximum efficiency until it has simplified its over-organization.

"When the war started, we all realized we were in the conflict, but actual work was restricted largely to planning. The nation was in the position of watching a fire with its hands in its pockets, awaiting direction. As the planning developed, more people were able to work. Now we have reached the point where everyone is in the war effort and our achievements will improve with simplification of organization," Mr. Mayhew said.

"We must see that everyone continues to work to keep the machinery of war rolling and can afford no let-up until the United Nations have achieved victory," he said.

NEED MORE SHIPS

He emphasized the need for more ships. "We have abundant materials piling up in Canada and we must have more bottoms in which to move them. Victoria's shipyards are operating as well as any in Canada and there is no reason to believe there will be any reduction in the number of orders which have been coming through so long as manpower and steel are available."

His work on the subcommittee of the war expenditures committee had convinced him there was very little if any waste in catering and messing in Canada's armed forces. Those departments, he said, were very efficiently handled.

His particular division has still to deal with the hospital question and will turn to that when it has finished its deliberations on salvage and conservation. "Scrap metal," said Mr. Mayhew, "is a very vital item in our war effort. Not a pound should be wasted or left around the individual's home."

He called on citizens to bring their salvage to depots and said they should be proud of yards of scrap metal now assembled. There was no reason to complain over such yards. The materials stored there formed the backlog for the industry and would be forwarded to the mills when other supplies were not available, he said.

"Canadians," he added, "should look on conservation and salvage from the point of view of the war may continue forever. It will end, of course, but we should not relax our salvage efforts. We should plan on a continuous supply of those materials."

He advised Victorians to clean their tin cans and to store them for collection at a later date. While the discarded cans could not be used in mills without expensive processing, the time would come when they would be crushed and baled for shipment to processing plants where the tin and scrap steel could be reclaimed, he said.

TIME TO DIG IN

U.M.W.A. officials said Monday they were conducting the ballot without government supervision since the Department of Labor had failed to comply with an order-in-council requiring that a strike vote be taken within five days of an application by employees.

The miners' union after an arbitration board had recommended against their application for recognition of the U.M.W.A. as their sole bargaining agent, applied for a strike vote Oct. 13.

Insurance Rates Down

NEW YORK (AP)—A reduction in submarine dangers was cited today in announcement that cargo war risk insurance on shipments from United States Gulf ports to the east coast of South America, south of Paramaribo, had been cut to 12 1/2 per cent from 15 per cent. At one time the premium for such insurance on that trade route was 25 per cent—$25 for $100.

Ottawa, he said, was more optimistic now than it had been for months. The national capital still considered raids on the Pacific Coast were possible and probable, but felt somewhat reassured owing to the fact the Japanese apparently have their hands full in the Solomons at present.

The capital was concerned too, he said, over the shortage of metals, including the nonferrous, rubber, oils and fats, but was bending the energies of its experts towards solution of those problems.

LAUDS LOAN SUPPORT

He paid tribute to Victoria's support of the Victory Loan in the following statement:

"The Third Victory Loan in Victoria has been an outstanding success. We owe much to the chairman and members of the organizing committee, the canvassers and workers of all kinds. However, no matter how perfect the organization or how faithfully the plans may have been carried out, in the end it was the patriotism, loyalty and determination of the people that made it all possible."

"The spirit of the Canadian men at Dieppe is becoming the spirit of Canada. We on the home front cannot let such men down. We cannot share and share alike with them, but we can do our best and keep on doing it, as we must, that they may return to their homes and freedom as quickly as possible. Nothing matters now but victory."

Edmonton May Name
Merchant Vessel

EDMONTON (CP)—Edmonton City Council, which recently passed the honor of naming a Canadian naval vessel to the town of Stettler, Alta., because it could not find a name acceptable to the Canadian Naval Board, may name a vessel of the War-time Merchant Shipping, it was learned Monday night.

Offer to name a merchant ship St. Port Edmonton was received today by Mayor Fry, and he intimated it would be accepted.

Letter of Condolence
Sent Mrs. F. D. Pelkey

SHAWNIGAN—The Civilian Protection Committee of the Malahat-Shawnigan A.R.P. has sent a letter of condolence to Mrs. Pelkey on the death of her husband, F. D. Pelkey, secretary-treasurer and district warden for Mill Bay. The committee paid tribute to the fine work Mr. Pelkey had done for the A.R.P. since it was organized in the district.

Members are reminded the old leaflet on respirators, printed in black, is to be destroyed. A new one, printed in green, will be distributed when available.

Compensation numbers must be marked on identification cards. The district warden has a list of numbers.

Practice with stirrup pumps is urged by all who have these available.

There is still a quantity of helmets and respirators on hand. Members should claim them now. G. F. Scollard has donated $125 to defray the cost of the Mill Bay fire truck.

A new first aid course is to start in Shawnigan Lake. Those interested should send in their names immediately to District Warden Eric Gibson.

Princeton Miners
Vote for U.M.W.A.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Federal Labor Department officials here said today coal miners at Princeton, B.C., in a ballot conducted Monday by the United Mine Workers of America, had voted 112 to 2 in favor of a closed shop in three Princeton collieries, a proposal which has been rejected by an arbitration board.

It was not known immediately whether the outcome of the vote would mean the miners would go on strike until their demands were met.

U.M.W.A. officials said Monday they were conducting the ballot without government supervision since the Department of Labor had failed to comply with an order-in-council requiring that a strike vote be taken within five days of an application by employees. The miners' union after an arbitration board had recommended against their application for recognition of the U.M.W.A. as their sole bargaining agent, applied for a strike vote Oct. 13.

Wheat

WINNIPEG (CP)—Wheat trade on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today was limited to a few minor purchases. The October future, only wheat on the board, closed unchanged at 90 1/2 cents a bushel.

There was no suggestion of export business in either wheat or flour. With the Chicago Wheat Exchange closed there was no intermarket trading.

Trade in the cash wheat market was limited to the sale of a few carlots for shipment east.

Local market trade was featured by good sales of oats to southern interests for shipment by rail and lake. This was reflected in the pit with shippers picking up both December and May futures in small quantities.

A large local interest was purchasing barley. Rye trade was featureless.

C.P.R. Still Leads

MONTREAL (CP)—Carriers and leaders in other sections showed rising inclinations up to the final hour today on the stock exchange.

C.P.R. was market leader and returned fractionally to the high it registered Monday in carriers. Noranda was a little firmer in pivotals metals and Imperial slipped in oils.

Aluminum was a strong spot in curb market transactions. Canadian-Marconi recorded a new high.

Siscoe and Wood-Cadillac did better in golds and Home was a trifle advanced in western oils.

R.C.A.F. Trucks Now
On Alaska Highway

EDMONTON (CP)—Heavily loaded with equipment and supplies for R.C.A.F. bases along the northwest staging route, between Edmonton and Whitehorse, a large convoy of trucks arrived here from the south, en route to the Alaska Highway.

The convoy, made up of between 60 and 70 trucks, most of which were four-ton vehicles, is scheduled to head north shortly. The convoy will be the first of its kind to move over the new Alaska highway.

Wing Cmdr. Con Farrell, D.F.C., is in charge of all airport bases occupied by the R.C.A.F. between Edmonton and Whitehorse.

The convoy was "piloted" by Royal Canadian Mounted Police cars on the trip to Edmonton, and city police escorted it through the city to a spot where it was temporarily stationed.

Noranda Adds Point

TORONTO (CP)—Moderate gains were posted by gold and base metal stocks in today's Toronto exchange market and industrial and western oil groups held about even with Monday's final prices. Trading was dull throughout most of the session, and aggregate turnover was under 75,000 shares.

Noranda was a base metal feature, advancing a full point to 38 1/2, in fairly active buying in small lots. Steep rock advanced 7 to 1 1/2.

Gains of 3 to 5 cents were posted by Macassa, Pickle Crow, Malaric Gold Fields and McKenzie. Lake Shore advanced 25 to 71.00.

Gains for the utility, food and building stocks were partly balanced by scattered losses in other groups.

Home Oil and Pacalta held narrowly to the up side, British Dominion Oil weakened a minor fraction, and other western oils remained unchanged.

Sun Life Invests
$20,000,000 in Loan

OTTAWA—Subscribing $20,000,000 to the Third Victory Loan, Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada, Montreal, has made one of the two largest individual investments in the current campaign, the national war finance committee announced.

The other $20,000,000 bond order was from Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., Ottawa.

Signing the Sun Life application, A. B. Wood, president and managing director, said: "The Sun Life of Canada has subscribed $20,000,000 to the new loan, making a total of $280,000,000 invested by Sun Life in bonds of the United Nations, of which $115,000,000 is in Canadian government bonds and more than $70,000,000 in United States government bonds. Our current subscription represents investment of the life insurance premium savings of more than 1,000,000 policyholders."

From Winnipeg came announcement that Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd., and its subsidiaries had invested $3,000,000 in the loan. The company's activities are centred mainly in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and it produces vital war materials, including copper and zinc.

Announced earlier was a subscription of $625,000 from the Investors' Syndicate, head office at Minneapolis, and the Investors' Syndicate of Canada Ltd., head office at Winnipeg. Of the total, $550,000 was from the United States company and $75,000 from the Canadian.

Earnings Boosted

MONTREAL (CP)—Ogilvie Flour Mills Company Monday reported net profit of $812,397, equal to $1.10 in the common stock, for the year ended Aug. 31, against $769,063 or $1.05 in the previous fiscal period.

Operating profits were $1,255,118, compared to 1,017,971 and total income, including income from investments, was $1,439,637 versus $1,652,648.

Income and excess profits were down from $399,300 to $300,000, and depreciation was $485,000 against $323,562. Surplus for the year was $72,396 against $29,068 and earned surplus forward was $2,951,027 versus $2,978,631.

Current assets were $10,875,597, compared with $11,120,704, and current liabilities $3,895,838 versus $4,009,722. Working capital was $6,979,769 against $7,110,

Historical Events During 125 Years Since Bank Began

The Bank of Montreal Has Served Dominion Under Eight British Sovereigns

Founded After Waterloo

World Highlights During Canadian Institution's Long Career Which Started Two Years After Napoleon's Defeat

Perhaps the best way to put in its rightful perspective the era in which the Bank of Montreal was established is to say that its founding was undertaken two years after Wellington's victory at Waterloo brought to an end the great Napoleonic Wars and freed Europe from a tyranny which left it impoverished and from the shock of which it took many years to recover. The Bank has served Canada under eight British sovereigns, has lived during the terms of office of twenty-eight of the thirty-two presidents of the United States. Here is a chronology of some of the history-making events in Canada or affecting Canada in the Bank's lifetime:

1817—Signing of the Rush-Bagot Agreement, in which was routed the disarmament between Canada and the United States which has existed for 125 years. Founding of the Bank of Montreal, the first permanent bank in Canada, giving to Canada its first organized financial system and its first domestic bank currency.

1818—Opening of branches in Quebec, Kingston and York (afterwards Toronto). The Bank's first manager at Quebec was Daniel Sutherland, the Deputy Postmaster-General for British North America.

1819—Birth of Queen Victoria.

1820—Death of George III.

1821—Coronation of George IV. Excavation begins on the Lachine Canal, to which enterprise the Bank gives important financial assistance. The canal was completed in 1825.

1825—World's first railway—the Stockton and Darlington—commences operation.

1825-1830—Great depression as an aftermath of the Napoleonic Wars.

1829—Welland Canal opens for traffic.

1830—Death of George IV. Accession of William IV.

1831—Work commences on Champlain Canal, finally completed 1858.

1832—City of Montreal is incorporated. Asiatic cholera in Quebec, 3,300 deaths.

1832—The first vessel to cross the Atlantic under steam alone, the Ss. Royal William, built at Quebec, sails from Pictou, N.S., and arrives in Gravesend, England, Aug. 5. Great Britain abolishes slavery in the British possessions.

1834—Incorporation of Toronto, heretofore York.

1836—The first railway in Canada, from St. Johns, Que., to La Prairie, Que., is opened for traffic. The enterprise was organized by the Hon. Peter McGill, then president of the Bank.

1837—Rebellions in Upper and Lower Canada. Death of William IV and accession of Queen Victoria.

1838—Founding of British North American Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, later Cunard Line, pioneer of regular trans-Atlantic steam navigation.

1839—Lord Durham, governor, in a report to London, recommends the union of the two Canadas.

1840—Act of Union between Upper and Lower Canada is sanctioned by Queen Victoria. Marriage of Queen Victoria to Prince Albert.

1841—Union Act is inaugurated and Kingston chosen as the seat of government.

1842—Ashburton Treaty is signed, settling the boundary between the United States and Canada east of the Rocky Mountains. The Bank establishes at Ottawa (then called Bytown).

1843—Cornwall Canal opens for traffic. The Bank establishes at Hamilton.

1844—Seat of Government is removed from Kingston to Montreal. The Bank establishes at London, Ont.

1846—First telegraph line in Canada is established between Toronto and Hamilton. Severe depression in Canada caused by repeal of Corn Laws in Great Britain.

1849—Rioting at Montreal and burning of the Parliament House.

1851—Introduction of postage stamps.

1852—The great fire of Montreal; 11,000 houses destroyed.

125TH ANNIVERSARY

OF CANADA'S PIONEER BANK

Through all the ups and downs of a century and a quarter, Canadians have put their trust in the Bank of Montreal. The Bank has endeavoured always to justify this public confidence by its unwavering policy and practice of safe, constructive, convenient banking, even in the most trying times. Each obstacle surmounted has added to the strength and capacity for service that have characterized Canada's oldest bank from its start on 3rd November, 1817. Today, as the Bank reaches its 125th milestone in the midst of war, its directors, its management and the 6,000 men and women who comprise its staff are determined to continue to serve Canada and Canadians to the full measure of their ability and the institution's strength.

From humble beginnings in the modest little rented quarters in St. Paul Street in Montreal, with a staff of but seven persons, the Bank moved forward step by step, expanding to meet the growing needs of a pioneer country. The Bank gave Canada its first real money by the issue of its own bills and copper coins, and as its organization spread out—branch by branch—it brought to the early colonists some semblance of business organization where before only barter methods had existed.

From its inception the Bank had a wide vision of its usefulness and began at once to lay the foundations of a banking system for the whole country.

First came its agency in old Quebec City, two weeks after its establishment in Montreal. Six months later, its branch in the garrison town of Kingston... then on to York, a lumber settlement of a thousand people in the midst of virgin forest—now the Queen City, Toronto.

Then sprang up branches at Bytown—now Ottawa, the capital of the Dominion—at Hamilton, London, Brockville, Amherstburg, St. Thomas, Belleville, St. Catharines, Cobourg, Saint John and Halifax... and then out into the West—to Winnipeg in 1877, bringing the first permanent banking facilities west of the Great Lakes—then on to Regina, to Calgary, and finally to Vancouver—a nation-wide chain completed immediately following the arrival of the railway in 1886.

Pathfinders and pioneers, Bank of Montreal men struck out to the East and to the West over an uncharted course—at one time travelling by stagecoach over rough forest roads, at another by arduous trek through the wilderness on snowshoes.

Courage and resolution of purpose—in fur trader and lumberman, in farmer and railway builder, in merchant and businessman—these are the enduring characteristics which through the years have made Canada great... and among this great company of nation builders is numbered the banker, a partner with every one of them.

The 125 years since 1817 have been full ones... years of hardship and pioneering effort were followed by years of expansion and prosperity. There have been years of war, of panic and depression and of political upheaval, and there have been years of peace and plenty... dramatic years, dynamic and historic years. (Starting only two years after Waterloo, the Bank has passed through the troublous times of the Crimean War, the Indian Mutiny, the American Civil War, the Fenian Invasion of Canada, the Afghan War, the Sudan War, the South African War, the First World War—and now is engaged in World War II.)

Thus Canada's destiny has been the Bank's destiny—country and bank have suffered and prospered together.

Today, as Canada grimly navigates the most crucial period of her career, the Bank of Montreal, rendering a thoroughly modern and efficient banking service in all departments, is marching shoulder to shoulder with Canadians—glad to be able to aid the government in carrying out its financial policies—glad to be able to extend credit to businessmen who are turning out the materials of war—glad to be able to lend money to the farmer who toils to increase food production for the United Nations—glad to be able to work with Canadians in the war forces and in every walk of life.

Just as the colonists looked to the Bank for leadership as it pioneered the way in 1817, so in the modern, streamlined times of 1942, Canadians naturally expect the Bank of Montreal to play a leading part in pathfinding through the critical days ahead.

The Bank's directors, management, and the six thousand men and women who comprise its staff are pledged to this task, and daily work in the confidence that Canada will win through to a future that will far outshine its record of the past.

————— V I C T O R Y —————

Erected to the memory of the 231 members of the Bank of Montreal's staff who gave their lives in the Great War, 1914-18, this monument of Victory, standing in the entrance hall of the Bank's Head Office, takes on an added significance as World War II enters its fourth year. Today more than 1000 members of the Bank's staff are serving in the Forces.

'Hank' Meets Miss Canadas

Gnr. Hank Rowe, M.M., who has made scores of public appearances on the Island and Lower Mainland in support of the Third Victory Loan Campaign dropped in to local headquarters today hoping to hear that Victoria had reached its quota. He was welcomed by the Miss Canadas who, when the quota is reached, will act as messengers to the Mayor and the Premier and officials at the Victory Pennant raising. The Miss Canadas were on the job in anticipation of a call today. The city, however, had not obtained its objective at time of going to press and returns indicated that their hopes must be deferred at least another day.

Defence Counsel Review Evidence In Conspiracy Case

With completion Monday afternoon of addresses to the jury in the trial of L. J. Simmons, former B.C. Police quartermaster and J. A. Walsh, managing director of Wm. Cathcart Co. Ltd., on charges of conspiracy to defraud, Mr. Justice Sidney Smith said the case would go to the jury Tuesday.

P. J. Sinnott, counsel for Simmons, told the jury that in a conspiracy charge between two persons an agreement must be proven—an agreement in the common sense.

He said the crown in their case had proven certain cheques had been fraudulently paid to Wm. Cathcart Co. Ltd. for goods not delivered to the quartermaster stores, but there was no evidence of any fraud on the part of the accused Simmons and there was no evidence of an agreement between Simmons and Walsh.

The crown had also proven, Mr. Sinnott said, certain unexplained shortages existed in the quartermaster stores department.

Mr. Sinnott suggested the shortages might have occurred through neglect and suggested a closer check-up should have been made by auditors to determine where the shortage was.

He outlined the system by which vouchers were approved, and in each case the officers in charge merely rubber-stamped the vouchers and passed them on to the next officer, he said.

The commissioner of police seemed to turn a light eye on what was taking place, Mr. Sinnott said, delegating his authority to the paymaster, who served as a rubber stamp.

Simmons' counsel said the system was a camouflage whereby dress shoes and riding boots were put on the record as ordinary shoes and Simmons had to conform.

He said Simmons was no more responsible for the shortages than the commissioner, the Attorney General's department and the controller's department.

"Simmons was a mere tool in the hands of certain individuals," he said.

Joseph McKenna, counsel for Walsh, told the jury that Walsh was not a majority owner of the shoe store until January, 1941, although shortages were noted as far back as 1938.

Mr. McKenna said only one witness, Miss Audrey Harness, had testified Walsh had given money to Simmons. He said Walsh had inherited the system from his predecessor, the late Wm. Cathcart, and Miss Harness, who had been with the firm for many years, was fully aware of the system.

Yet, he said, Miss Harness could only remember being told once by Walsh that the refund money was going to Simmons, and under cross-examination she could not recall when or where the conversation had taken place.

Mr. McKenna said it was peculiar no other witness, including the store bookkeeper, could recall Walsh or anyone else having said the refund money was going to Simmons.

"The company functioned as a money changer, so cheques could be cashed for the benefit of the Parliament Buildings," Mr. McKenna said. "Walsh made no profit."

Fighting French Tried En Masse

VICHY (AP)—France's biggest mass trial of Frenchmen charged with being members of the Fighting French government ended at Lyons Monday with 45 defendants receiving penalties ranging from payment of fines up to 10 years' imprisonment.

The trial followed six months of investigation touched off by a round-up of suspected followers of Gen. de Gaulle last March.

The leaders, including the son of Fernand Laurent, former Paris member of the Chamber of Deputies, eluded arrest and were tried in absentia.

In Neutral Sweden (CP)—The Swedish school children are giving valuable assistance in many fields in the present situation. They serve as air observers and in the civilian A.R.P., giving farmers assistance in harvesting.

Webster Declines

VANCOUVER (CP)—Arnold Webster, provincial president of the C.C.F., has declined to accept nomination as mayoralty candidate in the Vancouver civic elections Dec. 7, and will seek reelection as a member of the city parks board. No other C.C.F. candidate will seek the Mayor's ally, it was decided at a nominating convention here during the week-end, at which four aldermanic, two parks board and one school board candidate were named.

British Truck Conservation

LONDON (CP)—Government control was placed Monday on all truck traffic for hauls of 60 miles or more. About 25,000 vehicles are affected by the action, taken to save fuel, rubber and transport space. The trucks will be pooled, with steps taken to see they are laden to full capacity on their runs to avoid unnecessary duplication of routes.

WHY PERTUSSIN IS SO FREQUENTLY PRESCRIBED FOR

Bad Coughs

Pertussin—a well-known herbal remedy—often brings relief with the first spoonful. You see—Pertussin is scientifically prepared to work internally to relieve your cough spasms. Pertussin increases natural secretions in the respiratory tract to soothe irritated membranes. It improves ciliary action and loosens sticky phlegm and makes it easier to raise. Safe and effective for both old and young. Inexpensive!

Air Commodore Says Much Work to Do Before War Ends

Air Commodore E. L. McLeod told the Gryo Club at their luncheon Monday Canadians could expect to find a very tough nut to crack in the Japanese and, while R.C.A.F. bases on the B.C. coast are well established, there was a tremendous amount of work to be done before the war will end.

Air Commodore McLeod, whose promotion from the rank of group captain was announced this week, served overseas with the Royal Naval Air Service in the last war and also with the R.C.A.F. in Britain during this war. He spoke on "Development of the R.C.A.F. on Canada's Western Shores."

Recalling pioneer flying on the coast, Air Commodore McLeod paid tribute to the work of William Templeton and Bill Stark. He said that in 1917, as promotion for a Victory Loan campaign, W. E. Boeing, now the well-known airplane manufacturer, flew a plane from Seattle to Vancouver.

During the last war the first restrictions on flying on the B.C. coast were imposed by the military authorities. Canada contributed heavily in the number of pilots sent overseas to serve with the Royal Navy Air Service and the Royal Flying Corps. A Canadian air force was being established when the Armistice was signed, he said.

First uses of aircraft on this coast after the war were for forestry, surveying, transportation of persons, by fisheries departments for depositing fish eggs to stock lakes and for fish patrols and for geodetic surveys.

R.C.A.F. BORN 1924

When the R.C.A.F. came into existence in 1924, the general public still did not recognize its value for defence, the air commodore said. Air force training proceeded, however, until the depression, with Jericho Beach as one of the main seaplane training bases.

"When the war broke out we had selected sites along the B.C. coast for land as well as sea aircraft bases," Air Commodore McLeod said. "Fortunately it was possible for work to begin at once."

"The bases to a certain extent take care of the 5,000 miles of coastline," he said.

The problem of the R.C.A.F. on this coast, he said, was tied up with the U.S. problem of defence of Alaska and the R.C.A.F. was co-operating with the U.S. forces.

Makes Darning Music
LONDON (CP)—Bandsman Jack Langley wields a darning needle as deftly as he does his drum sticks. He entered a competition at an industrial exhibition and topped first prize for the best darned sock.

"Glad you're listening"

"It's a grand thrill for Todd Russell and me when they tell us that more and more of you are tuning in to
"They tell me..."

every day. Keep on listening, won't you?
Hope you will!"
